Demand to open new roundabout

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

A ROUNDABOUT built as part of a multi-million pound housing development in Ely has been in place for more than a year – but is still yet to be opened.

Now furious residents are demanding answers over the future of the Queen Adelaide roundabout.

Property developer Barratt Northampton built it at the end of the King's Avenue estate. But it is yet to open and nearby residents are now using it as a mini car park.

The company has refused to comment on why the roundabout is still closed.

The Weekly News has been bombarded with complaints from residents

Steven Niesen, of Lumley Close, said: "The fact this new roundabout has been completed for over a year now and is still not open is insane.

"I suppose the reasoning will be that it won't be opened until the nearby housing construction is completed but that is just absurd.

"Ely traffic is busy enough. There's no point forcing people who don't need to drive through the city centre to do so when the roundabout was built to alleviate that very congestion.

"I think it is a huge waste to have built it only so that people can use it for parking space.

Farmyard fun for half-term

YOUNGSTERS were able to get all arty-crafty at the Farmland Museum and Denny Abbey during the half-term break.

The popular tourist attraction flung open its doors on Tuesday for a farmyard fun day.

Families were invited to add some colour to the farm's mural by creating their own farm friends to add to the masterpiece.

Today, children were able to make paper models of tractors and shire horses.

The museum and Denny Abbey is open every day from noon-5pm weekdays and 10.30am-5pm on weekends and bank holidays.

For more information about the museum, call (01223) 860988 or visit www.dennyfarmlandmuseum.org.uk Masterpiece: Amber Williams and friend Taylor Fernie helped add a splash of colour to the mural with their creations.

Customer ordered out

AN abusive customer had to be escorted out of a solicitor's office in Ely.

Police were called to Archer & Archer, on Market Place, after the man became aggressive and refused to leave.

Four police cars attended the incident at 2.45pm on Monday. The man was escorted peacefully out of the building.

A police spokeswoman said: "We were called to the scene after an abusive man refused to leave the building.

"However, all was calm at the scene and he was removed from the location without any offences being committed."

Villagers dig in for wildlife

RESIDENTS of all ages gave parish councillors a hand in helping to transform a piece of wasteland into a wildlife haven.

They were working with Haddenham Parish Council on Wayman's Pits.

Cllr Gareth Wilson said: "It's such an exciting project. Wayman's Pits has been wasteland for years and finally we are injecting a bit of life into it.

"The aim is to create a space which the whole village can use. We are going to do our utmost to attract all sorts of wildlife to the area."

The parish council has taken a 21-year lease on the land opposite Anson's factory.

The area is being planted with shrubs and trees and in time, guided walks will be marked out and benches, bird boxes and bat boxes put up.

Go to www.haddenham.org.uk for more information.

Man's body is found in public toilet

AN inquest has been opened after a man was found dead in Ely.

The body of Justin Baker, 36, was discovered in public toilets at The Gallery in Ely Cathedral.

Mr Baker, of Steward Close, Stuntney, was found at around 7.30am on Sunday, February 7.

Police are not treating his death as suspicious.

An inquest into Mr Baker's death was opened and adjourned by William Morris, coroner for north and east Cambridgeshire, last Thursday.

A police spokesman said: "Police were called to the scene just after 7.30am.

"A man had been found dead in public toilets.

"His death is not being treated as suspicious hence it has been passed on to the coroners."

Soldier had halted convoy minutes before fatal blast

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

ruled Corporal Scott was unlawfully killed while on active service.

Corporal Scott was born and grew up in Ely and attended the City of Ely Community College, before moving to King's Lynn, where he lived with his wife Nikki and two young children, Kai and Brooke.

As reported in the Weekly News, his wife paid tribute to her husband, saying he was "the most loving, kindest, thoughtful person you could ever meet".

Nikki added: "I am so proud to be his wife. As well as the Army, his family were his life."

The inquest recorded a verdict of death by drowning associated with blast injuries caused by an explosion.

A pathologist said the soldier, who was one of the Army's youngest tank commanders, would have been unconscious from the moment of the explosion.

AN "instinctive" Army corporal had halted his convoy as a precaution minutes before a roadside bomb ripped apart his vehicle in Afghanistan, an inquest heard.

Corporal Lee Scott, 26, of the 2nd Royal Tank Regiment was killed in central Helmand Province on July 10 last year while leading a supply convoy.

He radioed to say there was a "funny smell in the air" just north of Nad-e Ali and stopped to check the surrounding area, but found nothing.

Just 150 yards after the convoy pulled off again a "massive explosion" from an improvised explosive device (IED) ripped Corporal Scott's Viking armoured vehicle in half.

He was found around 40 metres away but died, despite the best efforts of colleagues to save him.

Sitting at King's Lynn County Court on Monday, Greater Norfolk Coroner William Armstrong

'Unlawfully killed': Corporal Lee Scott.

The inquest heard from Captain Terry Newton, who said the convoy set off just after first light on to deliver supplies to the town of Chare-e-Anjir and checkpoints along the way.

A team searched the area using metal detectors for 20 minutes but decided the area was safe after a civilian people-carrier travelled along the route without any problem.

But as the convoy moved on, there was a huge blast and a giant cloud of dust blocked the view ahead.

Captain Newton said: "Lee didn't point out anything specifically. He didn't like what he saw, but couldn't put his finger on it.

"It literally seemed like seconds, then there was a massive explosion. It was exceptionally loud and a lot of dust and debris was in the air."

Captain Newton told the inquest that Corporal Scott joined his troop in 2007 and was a "high-flier" and highly respected by the men.

He said: "He was an instinctive soldier and one of the best I have had the privilege of commanding."

Describing Corporal Scott as an "outstanding person", Mr Armstrong said: "This inquest should remind all of us that the freedom and security we all enjoy is ultimately dependent on the courage of people like Lee who are prepared to make the ultimate sacrifice."

Letters call for council to protect Roswell Pits

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

PLANS to create disabled-friendly facilities at a much-loved beauty spot in Ely have been opposed by residents.

More than 170 letters have been sent to East Cambridgeshire District Council (ECDC) rejecting plans to build disabled leisure facilities at Roswell Pits.

The council's planning committee was set to make a decision on the scheme within the next few weeks.

But as a result of residents' concerns, the proposals have been put on hold, the Weekly News can confirm.

ECDC planners are now demanding an "environmental statement" from the applicants before any decision is made.

They will also have to carry out an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) to show exactly how the plans could affect the pits as a natural habitat.

The decision comes just weeks after it was reported that one of Britain's rarest birds, the bittern, had been spotted on the pits.

It was previously rumoured that the booming bittern inhabited the reed beds there and photographs were taken to prove the case.

The pits were also given Site of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI) status last year to protect hundreds of other important species of wildlife.

The Local Campaigners for the Protection of Rural Ely was just one of those to write a letter opposing the proposals.

Andrew Balmford, the group's chairman, said: "Like the bitterns that have been seen frequently at the pit recently, the public has signalled very clearly how much they value this area as it is."

"People's response to the application to develop the main pit at Roswell has been absolutely amazing, with over 170 letters now posted on the ECDC website."

"Almost everybody has said that they want this area to be left for quiet enjoyment, and for wildlife."

The applicants, Mr K. Slater and Jeremy Tyrrell, owner of the pits and Jalsea Marine Services, want to build disabled leisure facilities at the pits, including fishing stages, disabled toilets, access for emergency vehicles and parking areas.

However, they will have to produce an environmental statement before the plans are consulted on further.

A spokesman for ECDC, said: "As this planning application involves EIA development, we require an environmental statement from the developer before the planning application can move forward."

Guest appearance: Daniel O'Donnell, Ernie and Pauline Rickwood and Fergal Flaherty.

CP

Please welcome our next guest to the living room ...

A DEVOTED Daniel O'Donnell fan has spoken of her joy after opening the front door to find the singer himself standing on her doorstep.

Pauline Rickwood, from Soham, says all of her dreams have come true after the hit Irish singer paid a visit to her home.

Mrs Rickwood, 57, who lives with her husband Ernie, 59, in Martin Close, has been an admirer of Mr O'Donnell for more than 20 years.

She not only listens to his music and watches him on television but travels to watch him in concert whenever she can.

But last Tuesday, Mr O'Donnell visited her home town to perform alongside Bob Brolly and Fergal Flaherty at Brook House.

Mrs Rickwood and a group of her friends had booked tickets for the sell-out concert.

However, at around 4.50pm there was a knock at the door.

Mrs Rickwood said: "I opened the door and Daniel was standing there on the doorstep."

"I could not believe it. I was speechless. I never thought in a million years he would come to visit me at my own house."

Aware that he was coming to Soham, Mrs Rickwood decided to write a poem to the much-loved musician inviting him to her home.

Even though he is renowned for having a close relationship with his fans, she didn't think he would actually turn up.

Mrs Rickwood said: "I can't really remember the first five or 10 minutes as I was truly in such shock. He visited me with Fergal Flaherty and stayed for around 40 minutes."

"My friends who were coming to the concert with me were there at the time too so they were all as overwhelmed as I was."

Mrs Rickwood's husband Ernie even rushed home from work to see him after receiving an excited phone call from his wife.

Mrs Rickwood added: "It was just one of those moments you dream about but it actually happened to me and I am so grateful for him going out of his way to do it."

'Roundabout needed to reduce congestion'

Another frustrated motorist, Mary Smith, from Littleport, said: "With congestion as bad as it is in Ely, this roundabout should have been opened the second it was completed."

"It would reduce the amount of traffic driving through the city for sure and also be of huge benefit to people like myself living in Littleport and its surrounding villages.

"Everyone I speak to is fed up with its closure and I think it is about time we got some answers."

Another resident, Bill

Jarvis, 72, from Prickwillow, said: "People certainly want to know what is happening with it."

"Surely it's not going to be another facility just being left to rot in East Cambridgeshire."

Barratts Northampton is yet to hand over the roundabout to Cambridgeshire County Council. Until that is done, which it has been warned could take another 12 months, the roundabout cannot be opened.

However, Barratt Northampton has said it is liaising with the council.

Colin Rickard, the company's technical director, said: "We are currently liaising with Cambridgeshire County Council regarding the roundabout's adoption."

"This new road and roundabout will significantly improve access to Ely and we hope to have it open as soon as possible."

Sainsbury's store bid 'still on track'

FEARS that Sainsbury's bid to open a new store in Ely could be delayed have been quashed.

The supermarket giant insists its planning application for the Lisle Lane site is still on track.

The news comes after bosses at Anglian Water raised concerns about the application last week. They had written to East Cambridgeshire District Council (ECDC), which is currently dealing with the proposal, highlighting concerns about sections of the land, which they said the water company owned.

Anglian Water insisted it should have been contacted about the plans and said all parties concerned with the application failed to do so.

A spokesman for Sainsbury's this week said: "There is a technical issue that has now been rectified and this will not delay the determination of our application."

"We have been in negotiations with Anglian Water about the land purchase since last year."

An Anglian Water spokeswoman added: "Our discussions with Sainsbury's are ongoing."

Planning chiefs at ECDC are expected to make a decision on the supermarket plans in the spring.

If given the go-ahead, the development could create more than 300 jobs.

The multi-million-pound scheme includes a new customer restaurant, 470-space car park to serve the city centre and supermarket shoppers and new cycle bays.

Other facilities would include a shuttle bus service to and from Ely's city centre, improved pedestrian links, new traffic lights and improved junctions close to the site, improved street lighting and a new community recycling centre.

Jobs set to go, market traders under threat and waste collections

'Cuts will protect our core services'

IN LESS than a week's time, all the decisions will have been made.

Bosses at cash-strapped East Cambridgeshire District Council will have agreed all of their cost-cutting procedures and the budget for 2010/11 will have been finalised.

And with the authority needing to save £1.6 million in cash over the next 12 months, the outcome of the full council meeting on Tuesday is set to hit some residents and organisations hard.

Council leader Fred Brown has said his authority has "never faced a more difficult financial situation".

As reported in the Weekly News, all 220 employees at the Ely-based authority are currently waiting to hear whether they face redundancy in the coming months.

In an attempt to balance the budget for 2010/11, the council needs to make more than £750,000 in staff savings alone and a six-week consultation period is ongoing, involving everyone at the authority - from the chief executive to the street sweeping crews.

Cllr Brown said: "We don't know how many redundancies are going to be made but everyone is in the firing line."

"Nobody wants to have to make people redundant and affect families' lives like this, but things are the toughest they have ever been."

"Our proposals are painful but, unfortunately, necessary."

To make up the £1.6 million deficit, councillors will also be considering a council tax hike of 2.95 per cent, a saving of £25,000 on arts development by reducing funding for ADeC, withdrawing council-owned stalls used by Ely market traders and scrapping the region's plastic bottle kerbside collection service.

Dozens of community projects and charities are set to suffer too with grant schemes and funding set to be considerably reduced, as well as the grants the council gives to help protect the region's historic buildings.

However, angry Liberal Democrats have accused the authority of already setting the decisions in stone behind closed doors, without any form of public consultation.

Lib Dem leader Gareth Wilson said: "We are seeing time and time again the Tories vot-

As the countdown begins to East Cambridgeshire District Council's full meeting which will decide on £1.6 million in budget savings, JORDAN DAY takes a look at why the cuts are needed and what services are most likely to be affected.

The council's main proposed cuts

Staff savings:

Cutting £750,000 from staff budget. All 220 staff are currently in the middle of a six-week consultation period to have their say about redundancies. Everyone from the council's chief executive to street sweeping teams could be affected. The council has also saved £156,500 by freezing staff salaries. However, it has not yet been announced how many jobs are set to go.

Markets:

The council hopes to save £3,300 by introducing a 'no market stall' policy for traders and a further £28,000 in staff costs, with traders putting up their stalls instead of council workmen. However, traders are in uproar and more than 5,870 people have signed the Save Ely Market petition in just three weeks. They have said they cannot afford the cost of buying their own stalls and many fear they will have to quit the market if the cuts are made.

Historic buildings:

The authority hopes to save £50,000 by ending its Historic Building Grants programme. Fears are now being raised for the future of the district's old buildings and characteristic landmarks.

Planning application charges:

The council is looking to charge for pre-application discussions on planning applications, which it says could bring in £10,000 each year. The current duty planning officer service, which provides verbal advice, will continue free of charge.

CCTV:

The council is proposing to save £35,000 through a reduction in fibre-optic transmission costs and monitoring costs. It is also considering asking the police for a financial contribution.

Community infrastructure:

The authority hopes to save £20,000 by reassessing its grant scheme for community infrastructure, which targets villages without Section 106 contributions with populations greater than 800. Fears have been raised about how badly infrastructure in smaller villages could suffer.

The Maltings:

The council wants to bring in £9,000 by increasing the management contract income.

Plastic recycling collection:

The council is proposing to get rid of the kerbside scheme in a bid to save £129,000. However, concerns have been raised about the future of recycling levels across the district.

Training:

The council hopes to slash a further £12,000 by reducing its overall provision of staff training.

ADeC:

The region's arts provider has been saved from closure but it is still proposed to strip £25,000 from its annual budget.

ing en bloc after decisions have already been made in secret.

"These decisions, which affect major services across the district, are coming into the public domain for rubber stamping only after decisions have already been made."

"The Tories are not listening. They make up their minds and everyone else is expected to fall into line."

However, Cllr Brown said: "We have carried out a root and branch review of all the services which the council provides to find the savings to balance our budget."

"Make no mistake, none of the proposals being put forward has not been scrutinised or argued over."

"In some cases, suggestions which would have had a universal impact on residents or our area, such as ending the distribution of free black bin

bags, were rejected. "Some very difficult decisions have had to be taken and all of these measures are designed to protect our core services. "By tackling the problems now we hope to set the district on a firm financial footing, ready for the growth which will inevitably return to East Cambridgeshire."

Tuesday's meeting starts at 6.30pm.

Worried: aromatherapy stallholders Helen Roberts may also be among those forced to quit the Ely markets if budget cuts go ahead.

Charity fears cuts will hit dial-a-ride service

A CHARITY which provides “a lifeline” for elderly and vulnerable people fears it may be the next service to be given the chop.

Volunteers and users of the Ely and Soham Dial-a-Ride are worried they will be one of the first organisations to fall victim to East Cambridgeshire District Council's (ECDC) spending cutbacks.

Dial-a-Ride, whose motto is “Giving our community a lift”, was set up in 2003 to overcome transport problems for people who are isolated due to their disability, frailty or where they live.

The charity provides affordable door-to-door minibus services, allowing people of all ages to access local amenities such as supermarkets and post offices, without them having to wait for a bus or pay for a taxi.

Local social groups and organisations are also able to hire the minibuses and the charity even treats its users to excursions such as pub lunches and trips to the coast.

Everything is made possible by fundraising and money from local councils, including county, district, town and parish authorities.

But people using the minibuses fear the service will be scrapped as the authorities tighten their belts.

Judith Grundy, from Isleham, regularly travels to Ely and Soham on the minibus and said she would be lost without the service.

Mrs Grundy, 73, said: “Dial-a-Ride picks us up from our door and gets people like myself out and about.

“In rural areas such as where I live the public transport is not good and I cannot afford taxis everywhere. Dial-a-Ride is literally a lifeline for the elderly and disabled people.

“A lot of us are worried about what may happen and I dread to think what the consequences would be if it was to be taken away from us.”

Robert Scripps, one of 11 of the charity's minibus drivers, said: “People couldn't live without us.

“We get them out of the house and doing everyday things like shopping, which so many people take for granted. If Dial-a-Ride was to be axed the consequences would be catastrophic.”

But ECDC, which provides the majority of the charity's funding, said it was not looking at altering the support it provides Dial-a-Ride “at present”. However, a spokesman added “difficult decisions” were inevitable.

For more information about the charity, call (01353) 661161 or visit www.esdar.org.uk

Future of city markets ‘hangs in the balance’

MARKET stallholders who could be forced to give up their trade as a result of East Cambridgeshire District Council's (ECDC) savage cost-cutting measures have spoken exclusively to the Weekly News.

For years, the council has provided stalls and workers have erected them for traders before each market day. But those arrangements will end in April in a bid to save £31,000 in maintenance and staffing costs.

Traders are pleading with the authority to consider making savings elsewhere, despite Fred Brown, leader of ECDC, insisting it is too late for them to have their say.

They believe looking at other ways to save cash would not only stop them going under, but also prevent Ely's thriving markets from “dying out”.

Free range egg seller Sue Eddy, who has been trading on Ely's farmers' market since it started around 20 years ago, said: “This is really serious for us traders.

“It really, really matters.”

Her family have between 650 and 900 chickens on their farm, providing eggs for businesses in the city, including Peacocks tea rooms and The King's Arms pub.

But their main outlet for sales is the markets, with hundreds of customers visiting the stall when they are there.

Mrs Eddy added: “We have been worrying ever since the council announced the cuts to the markets.

“As a precaution, we have not renewed one of our flocks, just in case we are forced to give up and reduce the flocks further.”

The traders' cry for help comes after more than 5,870 people signed up to the Support Ely Market campaign in the last few weeks.

Haddenham resident Jane Howell launched the campaign to try and prevent the markets from falling victim to the budget cuts.

MP for South East

Cambridgeshire Jim Paice is also backing the protest, insisting the authority is making the wrong decision.

But while the authority is not set to make a final decision on the cuts until its full council meeting on Tuesday, Cllr Brown has told the Weekly News: “It's a done deal.”

In a bid to strip £31,000 from this year's budget, the cash-strapped authority has told stallholders they will have to purchase their own stalls.

Traders, regardless of their age or fitness, will also have to set up stalls themselves.

But stallholders insist the changes could destroy Ely's markets forever.

Fred Thurling, 73, has been selling antiques and collectables on Ely's collectables market since it first started but could also be forced to call it a day if the cuts are given the green light.

He gets his stock from house clearances and auctions, and never knows what might turn up from week to week.

Neither do his customers, who come every week in search of a bargain.

Mr Thurling said: “I do it because I enjoy it, but mainly because I need the money to top up my pension.

“I would have no choice but to give up if they don't provide the stall.”

Another trader, Helen Roberts, 50, could be forced to call it a day too and has been unwell since hearing the news about the proposed cuts.

Mrs Roberts, who runs an aromatherapy stall selling natural skin and body products, is currently trying to work out a way to keep her business going.

Mrs Howell, who launched the campaign, said: “The majority of the traders really are in a desperate position now, hence the huge amount of signatures the petition has received.

“The council should be ashamed of itself for ignoring this and pushing ahead with the proposals.

“The future of Ely's markets is truly hanging in the balance now.”

Last chance to have your say

Sir, All credit to the people of Ely who have signed up in their thousands (5,000-plus, we hear as of Sunday) to defend their city markets from short-sighted and ignorant cuts, imposed by our East Cambridgeshire District Council without due consultation with all the parties who should be involved. What a contrast with the reluctant so-called "consultation" conducted on the draft Masterplan for Ely, which involved fewer than 500 people in the end. Those who looked into it at all found it was a plan for growth with no alternatives and, having been through all that trauma for the last 15 years, they rightly shunned the plans for more large estates, high street name shops and what would be struggling traffic with a shrug and comments such as "they'll do it anyway", and "why should we bother?"

Well, councillors Brown and Moakes, who have led the "go for growth" plan, they didn't bother, but you and your council officers have been able to tick your boxes with those who watch over these things to see if you behave.

In January, they produced a report on the consultation results, which finished in November last year. I wonder how many of the very few people who gave their views have actually seen it?

It is 118 pages long, none of them numbered for easy cross-reference or discussion, but I read it carefully and numbered my own copy, which I had asked for. The very worrying thing is that it should have been a vital part of the conclusion of the consultation.

My reading of it does not discover any enthusiasm for growth, but much concern to preserve the distinctiveness of Ely, which could be destroyed if it grows much more. The report has no opening or concluding chapter by anyone responsible on the council to say if they learned anything helpful from the trouble their citizens took. One thing they do seem to have abandoned is a proposal for a multi-storey car park, "sensitively designed" (can you imagine?) in the centre of Ely.

Now, having duly consulted us, the majority group on the city council plan to vote it through in full council on next Tuesday at 6.30pm. We could all go, if we wanted and cared about it enough. It is our democratic right to be there and to ask the chairman a question in the 15 minutes allowed to the public at the beginning, if you hand in your question in writing as you arrive. But you had better give them notice that you intend to be there, on (01353) 665555, or the room they meet in will not be big enough. One councillor actually told me months ago that they prefer it that way, not too many members of an enquiring public present. If we do not take this opportunity to show we care as much about our city as we do about our markets, we shall have deserved all that could be coming to us in the next 15 -25 years.

Bin the bags to help save cash

Sir, If the district council would like to save money on waste collections, instead of axing the kerbside collection of plastic bottles, how about stopping the giveaway of black plastic bags? I do not use the black plastic bags, because it would take me weeks to produce enough non-recyclable waste to fill one.

The black plastic bags are half-pushed through letterboxes or thrown into front gardens, often staying there until evening when the householder returns from work, and making the streetscene look very messy. If the council scrapped this weekly free gift, not only would it save the cost of the bags, but it could also reduce the working hours of the refuse collectors.

Anyone who needed bin bags could buy 30 for 73p at the supermarket. It's not clear in your article (Plastic recycling set to go in cuts - Weekly News, February 11) whether the plastic bottle bank in Forehill car park will also go. I don't use the kerbside recycling collections, because it's just as easy for me to drop off my recyclables when I walk into town on a Saturday morning. However, I appreciate that there are those who wouldn't recycle if it weren't for the kerbside collections.

Also, when there are two businesses on the perimeter of the car park which have recycling containers for any kind of paper and cardboard, why is it that the district council's paper bank only takes newspapers and magazines? And who are the louts who dump other rubbish next to the recycling containers?

With East Cambridgeshire District Council having to tighten its belt, it's strange to hear that Cambridge

Leave count until morning

Sir, So, MP Jim Paice holds a belief that he is entitled to a quick result at the close of polling in this year's general election ('Overnight vote count must stay' - Weekly News, February 4)?

A few hundred years ago some individuals believed in the Divine Right of Kings but that doctrine has thankfully sank into obscurity. Equally, Mr Paice's attitude and expectations need to be tempered to the dire situation this country and the Tory-run council now finds itself in.

At a time when the Tories are cutting costs in an attempt to extricate themselves from the mess they are in Mr Paice will have to accept that some of the cuts being pursued may actually impinge on his aspirations. But then, this is where the real world outside the Westminster bubble exists.

While the chief executive may like to embroider his response with some verbal embellishments, a significant factor in postponing the count would be the savings to East Cambridgeshire District Council of employing staff to work unsociable hours stopping up all night counting ballot papers - a task that could be better accomplished by an alert and perceptive work force the following day.

Mr Paice should consider himself privileged. By virtue of his response he at least appears to have been consulted in the matter. Compare it to those less fortunate organisations such as ADeC or Ely's market traders who have been appallingly treated by the arrogant dictatorship currently running the council.

City Council apparently has money to burn. According to Metro (Council's 42 iPads to cut use of paper - February 10), they are going to spend 12 per cent of their climate change budget on iPads for councillors to use in meetings. One of the reasons given is that Cambridge agendas are sometimes 1,300 pages long. Anyone who writes a 1,300 page agenda is clearly mad, and anyone who prints one out is even madder, so I sincerely hope our district council is not guilty of a similar crime. If they are, I'd like to point out that a laptop and projector per meeting room is a lot cheaper than an iPad per councillor.

Cuts will ruin our beloved markets

Sir, As a trader on the Saturday craft and collectables market, I am appalled at the council's decision, without consultation, not to supply market stalls any longer and, along with other traders, have been campaigning for the councillors to change their minds.

We have had an enormous public response in our favour, through the media and also by signing of our petition. The council wants us to purchase our own stalls/gazebos and have said: "We are providing advice and assistance to market traders on the type of stalls available to purchase to ensure that the 'look' of the market is not compromised."

The only assistance we have had to date from the council has been a few photocopied leaflets and a very flimsy garden-type gazebo erected to demonstrate what we can buy for £95 - one puff of wind and it would take off like a kite! Will the council be supplying us with tethering points? There was no one to talk to or ask questions - where was the council and its help? The council has given no indication whatsoever about the type of stall/gazebo it would like to see, or what colour scheme, if any, it wants.

We have a very attractive market at the moment, with all the same type of stall and covers. I can see the Saturday craft and collectables market resembling something like a fairground or car boot sale.

The cost to the traders of purchasing a stall that will look the part and also be sturdy enough to withstand the Fenland wind will put off most traders and will destroy the market as we know it, as it's advertised in the tourist brochures.

We have public opinion on our side and I urge the council to rethink this crazy proposal. This is going to have an enormous detrimental effect on the city, not only for us the market traders but also the shops and coffee houses too. People will go elsewhere.

Mick Stimson
Soham

Problem not so small, Cllr Brown

Sir, Following on from the letters page last week, we can only think that Cllr Fred Brown visits a different market to the ones we go to on Thursday and Saturday. Most of the stalls we see are the council's, with their attractive striped awnings. It is certainly not the very small percentage mentioned by Cllr Brown.

What would we miss the most?

Sir, While researching the debate on council cost savings, I came across the post of green infrastructure development officer (GIDO). Apparently, the GIDO is tasked with addressing the shortfall in accessible, strategic open space within East Cambridgeshire. A number of questions spring to mind. An accessible open space I can understand – Soham recreation ground might qualify – but what is a strategic open space?

One dictionary definition of "strategic" is essential to the conduct of a war – what have we not been told?

Does the shortfall perhaps arise from Mr Woollard's bete noir, the National Trust's plan to render some land inaccessible?

Most importantly, and this is a very difficult issue with livelihoods at stake either way, would we miss the services of the GIDO as much as the Ely market and plastic bottle recycling?

Vision needed as region grows

It was with great interest that I read in the Weekly News of the Wicken Fen Vision and I am somewhat surprised to opposition to the project ('Wicken Fen Vision vital to help climate' – February 11).

The creation of new wetlands will lead to a number of benefits, including the promotion of bio-diversity, absorbing CO2 and other greenhouse gases.

With the A14 corridor likely to develop with new homes and businesses, the creation of green infrastructure where people can walk and ride bikes or horses is important to the wellbeing of the community.

The new nature reserve will also act as another venue for tourists to come to as they enjoy the historic delights of Ely and other activities in the local area.

Search: for Barry Brunton, above and right.

Have you seen this man?

THE hunt is on for a man accused of child sex offences which date back to the 1970s.

A warrant has been issued for his arrest and now police are calling on the public to help trace him.

Barry Robert Brunton, 61, was last known to be living in London Road, Downham Market, but has connections to Ely and Hertfordshire.

He worked in Hertfordshire at the time the offence is believed to have taken place, including as a choir master in Bishop's Stortford, and various schools across the county.

He is originally from the Isle of Wight.

He was previously arrested in 2003 and police bailed pending further enquiries but he failed to answer bail in early 2004.

The crime has recently been reviewed and has prompted an appeal.

Pc Jane Keating, investigating, said: "We are asking for anybody who knows the whereabouts of this man, or has any information which might help in locating him, to call police immediately on 0845 33 00 222, or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111.

Hertfordshire Constabulary is advising people not to approach him if they see him but to call police immediately.

High hopes for centre's future

CONTROVERSIAL plans to create a centre for people with learning difficulties and mental illnesses in Ely could soon be taking a step forward.

As reported in the Weekly News, Cambridgeshire County Council is planning to sell off the Croylands building on Cambridge Road.

The authority said it would then use the income from the sale of the centre, which supports people with mental health issues, to merge it with the city's Larkfield Centre.

The centre, which currently cares for people with learning disabilities, would then be adapted to make way for a mental health organisation.

But the proposals ground to a halt due to a lack of funds.

Now, the county council is looking to move the scheme forward again, the Weekly News can confirm.

A spokesman for the authority said: "The county council will be bringing together all the parties involved in this project at the outset to ascertain their ongoing commitment."

"We want to determine how, in the current economic climate, the scheme can be taken forward and investigate the potential alternative funding options which could be available."

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

Controversy has surrounded the plans since they were announced late last year. Liberal Democrats fear both amenities could be lost from the city forever and have been calling on the council to make a decision on their future as soon as possible.

Sue Austen, Ely South and Lib Dem county councillor, said: "We are not being told what is happening. The county council is dithering and no-one knows what the future holds."

"The county council must stop dragging its feet and get this issue resolved."

Carers at the Larkfield Centre also echoed the Lib Dems' concerns.

But the council insists it is not planning to move the services out of the Ely area.

The spokesman added: "We have no plans to move services but the project has been delayed because of the recession and we can only apologise for the delay."

"It was planned to sell Croylands to cover the cost of refurbishing Larkfield but unfortunately a purchaser pulled out because of the economic downturn."

"We are considering all the options to move the project forward."

Man in van steals urns

TRACTOR radiators and copper urns have been stolen from a yard in Prickwillow.

The yard on Ely Road was targeted at 1.30pm last Thursday. A man in a van was seen pulling into the yard and stealing three tractor radiators. He also stole three copper urns before speeding off in the vehicle.

Anyone with any information can call police on 0345 4564564.

Regeneration focus of tour

THE City of Ely Community College has been hosting a group of Romanian students and teachers as part of its international school programme.

The group returned home at the weekend after a 12-day visit. For the last two years, students from Ely and ATL College Agnita have been working in partnership under the project title of "Stop! This is Our Community", which has focused on regeneration and conservation within the local areas of each city. As part of their visit, the group visited Cambridge and London, as well as various sites in Ely. The visit follows an exchange last October, when students from Ely visited Agnita for 10 days.

Conservatory is set to go

A CONSERVATORY could be demolished to make way for two new extensions.

Mr I. Palmer, of John Amner Close, Ely, has applied for planning permission to carry out the work, which includes building two single story extensions in the conservatory's place. East Cambridgeshire District Council is expected to make a decision on the scheme within the next eight weeks.

MEMORIES

■ THIS week's picture, taken from our archives, shows an local street scene. Do you know where and when it was taken? Do you recognise any shops in the photograph or have memories of the area? Send your answers to: Memories, Ely Weekly News, 27 Market Place, Ely, CB7 4NP by Tuesday morning, or email editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

Picture: 589335.

Last week's Memories photograph, from our archives, showed people taking part in a King's School Ely rowing marathon. It was taken in April, 1970.

Mark Wilkinson recalled the picture. He said: "I remember all the faces but, alas, not all the names. 'The picture is of a King's School Ely rowing crew. It is the first VIII, but there is a member missing. Perhaps he is taking the picture. Centre of the picture is the number on the back of the cox. 'If I remember correctly the school crew did a sponsored row to celebrate 1,000 years of education at King's in 1970. I think the row was from Cambridge to Ely, but I'm not sure. Certainly the picture is not in Ely. 'I can't remember all the names and certainly not all the Christian names, but from left to right they are not sure, Andrew Borland (I think), not sure, Fred Russell (ex-RSM Royal Marines, coach and motivator extraordinary), Boddy (one of a pair of twins), David Goodin, cox Prior, whose Christian name I have forgotten, Simon Galpin and Mark Watterson.

"Fred Russell never rowed himself, but produced a crew that came 11th. in the Tideway Head race, this was, for a boat club of such a small school, quite an achievement. I think that it was this crew. 'I joined the staff at King's in 1969 and helped coach rowing - as I still do."

Many thanks to Kathy

Butcher, of The Chase, Ely, who correctly identified our Memories photograph of February 4, which showed Hi Di Hi star Ruth Madoc singing with the City of Ely Community College choir. Kathy's daughters, Joanne and Tracey, were members of the choir when the picture was taken in 1989.

Line drawn under parking problems

"SELFISH" commuters are being banned from clogging up a business park in Ely.

For years, commuters have been unlawfully parking in the Cambridgeshire Business Park, off Angel Drove.

Instead of paying to park in the Angel Drove car park, motorists have been leaving their vehicles in the narrow streets of the business park and, in some cases, on companies' forecourts.

As reported in the Weekly News, East Cambridgeshire District Council has been investigating ways to solve the problem following complaints from firms.

It has now said it will paint double yellow lines throughout the business park to deter illegal parking. Special parking bays will also be created to allow employees at the park to leave their vehicles on site.

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

A member of staff from Shearline Engineering, located on the park, said: "Everyone here is pleased the changes are going to be made."

"The problem with selfish commuters leaving their cars here all day, instead of parking where they should, has been going on for so long now."

"Some of us have to pay for parking elsewhere because they were hogging our places and that is not right."

"Hopefully, this will put an end to this."

Councillors have also agreed to raise the price of parking in the Angel Drove car park from £2.50 to £3 for a daily ticket, and £11 to £12 for a weekly ticket.

But the charges are still £1.10 cheaper than parking at Ely railway station.

The decision was made by the authority's environment and transport committee.

Cllr Tony Parramint, chairman of the committee, said: "Members have heard the outcome of the consultation which was looking at how to tackle the problem of commuters clogging up the roads of Cambridgeshire Business Park."

"Councillors accepted the recommendations to create special parking bays and paint double yellow lines throughout the business park."

"We hope these changes will improve the park for local businesses."

"The meeting also agreed to raise the price of parking in the Angel Drove car park."

Shock for shoppers as electricals firm closes

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

A MAJOR electricals chain is pulling out of Ely.

Shoppers have expressed their sadness after hearing about the closure of Currys on the High Street, which will shut its doors on March 6, the Weekly News can confirm.

The popular store is being closed as part of the company's "ongoing review" of its high street portfolio.

Karen Bridges, of Ely's Alexander Chase, was upset by the news. The mother-of-two said: "I think it's a great shame."

"Ely's Currys store is always busy and I buy lots of things from here."

"I definitely didn't think it would close down but obviously I was wrong."

Another disgruntled customer, Wayne Buttercup, 49, from Wilburton, said: "I'm surprised it's closing. I must admit."

"I'm always in here buying stuff and it's always fairly busy."

"There will be quite a few people put out by its closure and it just means another shop is going to be empty in Ely."

A member of staff at the store, who did not want to be named, said: "The company is actively trying to find us roles we can move into when the store closes but there are only so many of those available."

"There will certainly be some of us left without a job and it's just a matter of waiting to see what happens."

Currys is the latest shop to close in the city, with dozens of premises currently standing empty, including the old Ocean Cargo shop in The Cloisters and The Beauty Room in Market Street.

A spokesman for Currys said the decision to close its Ely store was "regrettable".

She added: "The store in Ely will be closing at the beginning of March."

"We have been working with the team to help them find alternative employment, preferably within our organisation."

Get in the groove with weekly dose of jazz

Laid-back Sundays: Antonio Carlos Jobim, with special guest Ross Bradbury on saxophone, helped to kick off the first regular jazz sessions at The Lamb Hotel last weekend. CP

JAZZ lovers can finally enjoy regular doses of their favourite sounds.

A new laid-back Sunday lunchtime jazz club has been launched at The Lamb Hotel in Ely. And what better time to launch it than on Valentine's Day.

Nigel Smith, organiser, said: "Having listened to people for years that there was no jazz in Ely – either to listen to or to play – I've decided to start up Ely Jazz Club."

"This new venture, which is supported by ADeC, will give people of all ages the opportunity to listen to, and if they want, to participate in mainstream and contemporary jazz."

"Playing some favourite standards and some different styles, most of the sessions are trios and feature a local musician of note."

The sessions will be running every week from 12.30-2.45pm.

Sunday's launch featured music of Antonio Carlos Jobim with special guest Ross Bradbury on saxophone.

Admission to the sessions is £5 but free for under-16s.

For more information about the club, call Nigel on (01945) 773121.

Poets get ready for jam night

BUDDING poets are in for a treat in Ely.

A poetry jam session will be held in the city on Thursday, February 25.

The event is on at the Babylon Gallery on Waterside to give local poets and musicians the chance to share live readings and acoustic music.

Clare Crossman and Boo Hewerdine will also be performing original material. Entry to the event, which runs from 7-9pm, is £2 on the door.

For more information, call (01353) 616991 or visit www.adec.org.uk

Wash away the stress at library

THOSE needing to relax and unwind should head to Ely Library on Tuesday.

A meditation session is being held there from 10.25am-noon.

The session costs £6 and is aimed at keeping depression at bay, reducing stress and boosting relaxation.

Meghan draws on cycle advice

A LITTLEPORT schoolgirl has won a special cycle safety competition run by Cambridgeshire County Council.

Meghan Stevens, a Year 6 pupil at Millfield Primary School, drew the winning design for a poster encouraging primary school children across the region to be safer on their bikes.

Her hand-drawn design has been scanned and reproduced so it can be displayed in other schools.

Meghan has also won a new bike with accessories and a road safety goody bag.

Matt Staton, road safety officer for the council, said: "Meghan's design really stood out as it was bright and very informative."

"It was obvious that a lot of effort had been put in and Meghan had remembered all the information she had learnt during the safer cycling course she had completed at her school earlier in the year."

All the colours of the rainbow: Ginette Heard and Christine Brown at Yarn on the Square store, the third wool shop to open in the city in the past few months.

Knitters all in a spin as new shop opens

KNITTERS are being spoilt for choice in Ely.

In December, the Ely Wool Shop was opened in St Mary's Street by Sandra Cox. Curtis Crafts has also been opened in The Cloisters by Barbara Curtis.

And now another wool shop has graced the city with its presence – on the Market Place.

Neighbours Christine Brown and Ginette Heard decided to put their love of yarns into practice by setting up their own wool shop, Yarn on the Square, which was officially opened last week.

The businesswomen, from Barway, are not only selling all sorts of designer wools but will also be offering knitting classes for beginners and lessons on skills such as felting and Fair Isle.

Christine said: "We're taking a new look at the skills which have been passed down through the generations, bringing them back into vogue and fit for the 21st century."

"There is no better feeling than the achievement of an individually crafted item made with love and skill."

Ginette said: "There is a comfy seating area in the shop where people can sit and browse patterns."

"We are hoping people will phone a friend, bring their knitting and enjoy a coffee with us."

Yarn on the Square is open six days a week. For more information, visit www.yarn-on-the-square.co.uk

County seeks views to map out future of transport

EAST Cambridgeshire residents are being invited to have their say on the region's Local Transport Plan.

Cambridgeshire County Council is holding a series of public exhibitions about the plan, which is a blueprint on what transport schemes should be developed in the future.

Residents will receive a leaflet outlining initial plans, giving each household the opportunity to give their views by returning a questionnaire.

As part of the countywide public consultation, staffed exhibitions will be taking place in Ely and Soham, as well as a number of other events across Cambridge-

The exhibitions are being held at Soham Library on Monday, February 22 from 2-6.30pm and Ely Library on Thursday, March 18 from 2-7.30pm.

Throughout February and March, exhibitions will be held in locations around the county.

People will also be able to complete the questionnaire online at the main Local Transport Plan page, www.cambridgeshire.gov.uk/ltp

Rainbow Tutoring

Is your child falling behind or struggling with maths and literacy? If so I can help.

Let me assess your child for free. I am a primary teacher with more than thirty years of teaching experience. I have worked in primary schools, special needs schools and home tutoring. I have a Masters in Special Education, a diploma in diagnostic reading difficulties and I am a trained reading recovery teacher.

I will tutor children from 4 – 14 in Maths and English in your home or mine. I also teach English as a second language and French to adults. I am CRB checked.

Personal tuition helps children reach potential

EXPERIENCED teacher Elizabeth Wilcox is holding regular tutoring sessions at the Young People of Littleport (YPL) centre in Littleport.

Whether your child is struggling in a particular subject or requires some one-to-one tuition to excel in upcoming exams or perhaps to get them on the pathway to higher education, Rainbow Tutoring will help your child to achieve their academic goals.

Sessions are open to children aged four to 14 of all abilities and take place Monday to Saturday. Elizabeth tutors in all subjects including French. She has been teaching since 1976 and has a Masters in Special Education and diplomas in Reading Recovery and Diagnostic Reading Difficulties. Elizabeth offers free assessments for children. She then designs a program specifically for the individual child to help him/her make progress. Children respond very quickly in a one-to-one situation and make rapid progress often reaching higher levels than is usual for their age group.

Education is extremely important for every child as it lays the foundation for the rest of his/her life. A good firm grounding in literacy and numeracy is essential.

Rainbow Tutoring has been running since August last year and following demand is now available at the YPL. The one-hour sessions can be booked

Under fire: Luke Massey and Selby Sasioglu prepare to soak Zak Mappedoram to raise money for the Haiti earthquake disaster fund. CP Pupils stock up on sponges!

A SPORTS teacher got more than he bargained for when he agreed to help raise money for charity.

Zak Mappedoram, head of PE at Witchford Village College, got a thorough drenching last Friday when students organised a "sponge the teacher" event.

Students were asked to pay for the privilege of throwing wet sponges at the teacher during their lunch break to raise money for the Haiti earthquake relief fund.

Overall, the event raised just under £100.

Emily Tarbuck, the college's head girl, said: "We hope this will be the first of several fundraising events for the survivors of the Haiti earthquake disaster."

Man is fined over danger red light run

BY JOHN ELLUL

Email: editorial@elyweeklynnews.co.uk

A MAN who ran a red light at a level crossing as the barrier went down risked the lives of a train-load of people, a magistrate said.

Charles Shaw, 40, of High Street, Sutton, pleaded guilty at Cambridge Magistrates' Court to failing to comply with a flashing red signal at the Foxton railway level crossing. He was fined £600 and had three points put on his licence.

The court heard Shaw was driving home from his job as a data manager in Hoddesson, Hertfordshire, at 7.30pm on August 13 when the warning signal came on.

Dr Stephen Halliday, chairman of the bench, said Shaw was lucky to be alive and it was the first time such a case had come before him in 13 years as a magistrate.

"We get very few of these cases," he noted.

"Usually when someone runs a red light at a train crossing they are in no condition to come to court afterwards.

"This was a serious offence which could have resulted in the death of not only yourself but also lots of people on the train," Dr Halliday told the defendant.

Prosecuting, Paul Brown told the court that the red signal can be seen from at least 500 yards away. With the use of CCTV footage, the court was shown how there was no-one behind Shaw's silver Volkswagen Golf to prevent him from braking sharply.

"This is a crime of a serious nature, far more dangerous than running an ordinary red light," said Mr Brown.

The court heard, in his defence, that there were a number of extenuating circumstances for why Shaw should not be banned from driving. His wife was pregnant and had been made redundant, leaving him as the sole breadwinner.

In mitigation, the court was told that three cars had gone through ahead of Shaw and his solicitor said he had had a "split second change of heart when he was about to stop".

Shaw was also ordered to pay costs of £50.

On yer bike: Owen Hook with the bike he bought in 1953, right, and is still riding today.

CP

Still riding high – 57 years later

SCHOOL caretaker Owen Hook is still riding to work every day on the same bike he bought 57 years ago.

Owen, 72, paid 36 monthly instalments of 10 shillings (50p) for the top-of-the-range Raleigh after buying it from a local department store in 1953.

He has ridden the bike every day since, either commuting to work or heading to the shops near his home in Haddenham.

The three-speed cycle, which was green but was resprayed red in 1985, still has its original steel frame, wheels, seat, gear and brake cables, and mudguards.

And the grandfather-of-four still rides it half a mile twice a day to his current job as caretaker at Robert Arkenstall School.

He bought the bike after discovering his love for cycling while working as a grocery delivery boy after leaving school at 15.

Mr Hook, who lives with his wife, former dinner lady Ruby, 68, said the bike was an example of British craftsmanship at its best.

He said: "I used to go past the bike in the store window and for a long time I could only dream of buying it and I would stare at it for hours."

"When I left school and found a job I went straight down to the store and bought the bike with an agreement to pay for it in monthly instalments."

"I remember thinking it was an absolute beauty and I have used it nearly every day since and it has never let me down once."

"When I was younger I also used it to travel around the village, picking up friends and visiting some of my pals. I must have looked very dashing."

"I replaced a blown tyre on it just last week and it cost me more to replace it than I originally paid for the bike almost 60 years ago!"

Mr Hook bought the bike from JW Angwood, in St Ives, and the only part he has had to replace through age are the lights, after the originals corroded a few years ago.

Mr Hook had only ever crashed the bike once after he tried to wipe some mud from the forks as he was riding it and fell over the handlebars.

The bike suffered a broken fork following the high-speed crash. Mr Hook broke his collar bone and had to be taken to hospital.

Mixed teams go head-to-head in free taster session

PEOPLE wanting to try their hand at a quirky sport are in for a treat.

The Littleport Lions Korfball Club is running a free taster session aimed at promoting the sport on Sunday.

Korfball is a game open to mixed teams and is described as a cross between basketball and netball.

The session is being held at Littleport Leisure Centre from 3-4pm.

Tom Hickson, sports development officer at East

Cambridgeshire District Council, said: "Korfball is one of the few true mixed gender team sports, with rules specifically written to ensure both men and women have an equal opportunity."

"For anyone who hasn't played to describe it as simply a cross between basketball and netball wouldn't do it justice."

"The free taster session is designed for anyone 13 or upwards to give the sport a go, but more importantly have fun when you are keeping fit."

"You can also put to bed any suggestion that your partner is better at sport than you are so come along and give it a go."

For more information, call Mr Hickson on (01353) 665555 or visit www.littleport-lions.co.uk

Have say on waste plans

RESIDENTS are being urged to have their say on the future of waste management and mineral extraction in Cambridgeshire.

Cambridgeshire County Council has launched a six-week public consultation to enable the public to help shape the future of the services.

In East Cambridgeshire, consultations will be held at The Glebe, Sutton, today from 4-8pm and Arkenstall Village Centre, Haddenham, on March 4 from 4-8pm.

Planners have been drafting the Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Minerals and Waste Plan to help meet the challenges of climate change and the impact of thousands of new homes due to be built in the region over the next 15 years.

The plan proposes the location of future waste management facilities and mineral extraction sites up until 2026.

It has a number of key principles, including making minerals available for the construction of new housing and infrastructure, including the A14 upgrade, and encouraging recycling through conveniently located, modern, enclosed recycling centres.

A key issue being addressed is the impact of heavy vehicles transporting minerals and waste around the county's roads.

The plan proposes a number of approaches including identifying sources of construction materials close to major infrastructure schemes, routing agreements with hauliers to minimise traffic through local villages, and ensuring that lorries carrying materials to sites, transport waste from those sites at the same time.

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

Cllr Roy Pegram, the county council's lead member for growth, infrastructure and strategic planning, said: "This plan is key to helping us meet the challenges of climate change and housing growth, by providing state-of-the-art recycling facilities, and safeguarding the materials we need to deliver growth."

"We need local communities to play their part by joining us at one of the many events we are running across Cambridgeshire, or by logging on to the council website to share their views."

The plan, along with a summary of the responses to this consultation, will go to an independent planning inspector, who will carry out a series of public examinations starting in the autumn, before it is finally completed in 2012.

To view the consultation documents or to find out about an event in your area, visit www.cambridgeshire.gov.uk/environment/mwplan

Fair fire service reaches Level 3

THERE are celebrations all round at Cambridgeshire Fire and Rescue Service.

Following an assessment by external experts, the service has achieved Level 3 of the Equality Standard for Local Government – something which only a few fire services have achieved.

The Equality Standard is a framework used by local authorities to assess progress in equality and diversity.

The assessors were impressed with the level of work carried out to ensure both members of the public and staff receive a fair and equitable service.

The service was praised particularly for its partnership work, local engagement with communities strong leadership, and training initiatives that make a difference.

Alison Scott, equality and diversity adviser for the service said: "The service as a whole has had to embrace a change in the way it thinks about equality and diversity to get to this stage. People across the organisation have worked hard to understand that equality is part of everything we do."

"Getting the Level 3 award is a great acknowledgement of that work and confirmation that our plans and initiatives are taking us in the right direction."

Creatures come to class

CREATURES of all shapes and sizes have been entertaining children in Littleport.

This term, pupils in Years 3 and 4 at Littleport Community Primary School have been studying the topic, Not in my Backyard.

Youngsters became bug hunters, collecting minibeasts from around the school grounds and studying them under the microscope in their science lessons.

But to further enhance their understanding of the world's animals, organisation Wild Britain visited the school to show the children animals they would not find in the Fens.

Among the creatures

A spokeswoman for the school said: "The children and staff involved thoroughly enjoyed the visit and certainly learnt a great deal from the experience."

Subway 'looking' but no plan yet

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

RUMOURS are rife that high street food giant Subway could be on its way to Ely.

And cafés and restaurants around the city are concerned.

A member of staff from popular café Daybreaks, located on Forehill, said: "Everyone's saying Subway is coming to Ely. People don't know where it might be setting up but there must be something going on as so many people are talking about it."

"It is causing us concern because the last thing Ely needs is another café or food place like Subway."

"A major chain like that really could put all of us smaller cafés in the city at risk."

The Almonry, off High Street, had also heard the rumours. A member of staff there said: "We have heard that Subway might be coming to Ely."

"I think Ely needs more clothes shops before it needs another eatery."

"We hope that if Subway is seeking to come here that planners see sense and realise that it could have a negative effect on all of the city's individual eateries."

Subway confirmed to the Weekly News that it is "actively seeking a site in Ely".

A spokesman for the company said: "Whilst we actively seek a site in this city, at this time we do not have any imminent opening in the pipeline."

Elaine Griffin-Singh, chairman of the Ely Traders' Association, said: "Ely certainly does have its fair share of eateries but at the end of the day, competition is healthy."

"I think it would be good if Subway came to Ely as it would be another big name that the city would boast."

"I suppose we will just have to wait and see if they submit plans in the future."

School lessons covered

CHILDREN at Downham Feoffes Primary School could soon be holding classes outside.

The Little Downham school, located on Main Street, has applied for planning permission to build a canopy to create an outside teaching area.

The decision lies with East Cambridgeshire District Council. To comment on the plans, visit www.eastcambs.gov.uk

Joy over night count win

JIM Paice, MP for South East Cambridgeshire, is celebrating after an amendment to the Constitutional Reform Bill was passed.

It would mean that a general election count would need to start within four hours of the polls closing.

At the last minute, Justice Secretary Jack Straw backed a Conservative amendment to the Bill which went through the House of Commons last week.

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

It will now go to the House of Lords after which, if it became law, would force the count in the South East Cambridgeshire constituency to take place on election night rather than beginning the next day as currently planned.

Mr Paice, who spoke out against plans to hold the count the next day, said: "The drama and excitement of election night is a crucial part of the way in which the electorate can engage with the political process and must be saved.

"The candidates are entitled to a result as soon as possible, but more importantly so is the country.

"This is not a matter simply about one constituency but about the Government of the United Kingdom.

"In the event of a close result nationally all individual constituencies' results are very significant."

Hitting the road: Andrew Powell is hoping to raise thousands of pounds for Great Ormond Street Hospital by cycling across America. Picture: Keith Jones 626276.

Coast-to-coast trek for charity bike rider

A PHYSIOTHERAPIST will be using pedal power to raise thousands of pounds for Great Ormond Street Hospital.

Andrew Powell is swapping the treatment couch for the open road in a tough charity cycling challenge across America.

The rugby physio, who provides support for Cambridgeshire's youth and senior squads, has also worked with the Eastern Counties youth team and Bury rugby clubs.

Mr Powell, who grew up in Stretham, has flown out to the USA to cycle a saddle-sore 4,262 miles from the east coast to the west.

After paying for his flights, accommodation, food and equipment himself, he hopes to raise around £3,000 for the hospital through sponsorship.

He said: "I start in Yorktown, Virginia and will pass through Kentucky, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and finish in Oregon.

"I intend to camp for most of my trip but, like Bear Grylls, I suspect I might have a night or two in a motel.

"I'm cycling to raise money for Great Ormond Street Charity, which raises money to enable Great Ormond Street Hospital to provide world-class care for its young patients and their families, and to pioneer new treatments and cures for childhood illness.

"I would like to thank Jerry and Julie at JT Cycles in Ely for helping me get my bike, clothing, spares and accessories assembled, and Janet Rosie and the team at South Cambridge Physiotherapy for keeping me going through my training.

"I wouldn't be as fit as I am if they hadn't kept putting me back together."

Family fun at fen reserve

FAMILIES turned out in force to the Welney Wildfowl and Wetlands Trust for a whole host of activities during the half term.

There were special cygnet hunts for the children, arts and crafts for people of all ages, as well as nature trails and swan feeds.

The reserve's impressive swan feeding sessions continue until March 14.

People of all ages are welcome and the reserve has manual wheelchairs and electric buggies for hire.

For more information, call the reserve on (01353) 860 711.

Question time

RESIDENTS had their chance to raise issues with Ely city councillors on Saturday. The City of Ely Council held a drop-in session at the city's market to answer people's questions.

The city council is responsible for the cemetery, street lighting, hanging baskets, children's play areas and Christmas lights.

For more information, call the council on (01353) 661016 or email cityofelycouncil@tiscali.co.uk

Plates taken

BOTH number plates on a car where stolen while it was parked in Stretham.

The Vauxhall Astra had been left in Meadowcroft and the owner noticed the plates were missing when they returned. The vehicle had not been damaged.

It happened overnight on Wednesday, February 10. Anyone who saw anything suspicious should call police on 0345 4564564.

Sticky case

YOBS forced glue into padlocks securing a building site in Littleport.

The incident happened at a yard in Wisbech Road overnight on Tuesday, February 9.

The offenders put glue inside three of the padlocks used to secure the main gate entrance. Anyone with any information should call police on 0345 4564564.

Emily paints a picture of life with travellers

Building bridges: retained firefighter and artist, Emily Haysom, was commissioned to carry out a "social engagement through art" project with travellers in Cambridgeshire. Right, one of her photographs.

AN art exhibition is being launched to help people engage with the region's travelling community.

Cambridgeshire Fire and Rescue Service is spearheading the exhibition at Ely fire station.

In July last year, the service commissioned retained firefighter and artist Emily Haysom to carry out a "social engagement through art" project with travellers in Cambridgeshire.

The aim of the project, called Tea by Invitation, was to create new links with the travelling community and to bridge understanding between firefighters and travellers, who have been identified as one of the fire and rescue services "hard to reach" groups.

Emily was invited into travellers' homes to talk about their culture, way of life and views of the fire service.

She also took photographs of particular scenes and artefacts that reflect the culture of the travelling community.

Matt Murdoch, Ely station manager, said: "This project has opened up invaluable dialogue with travellers and provided us with an insight into how we can change our own culture and become more accessible to the diverse communities we serve.

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

"Both Emily's report and her artwork paint a picture of a community of travellers who are aware of their vulnerability to fire and are open to receiving help and advice from the fire service.

"The project has identified a variety of ways we can improve traveller engagement, including targeting safety messages towards the specific risks facing travellers, such as the use of gas cylinders, and toning down uniforms worn by firefighters delivering safety checks in traveller communities.

"In the long term, we will be able to use the new links we have created to further improve the services we offer to all sections of the community."

Emily said: "I spent time meeting people in the travelling community and was universally shown a warm welcome.

"My photographs and artwork reflect these conversations and gifts and reflect travellers as they are, rather than how others might want to portray them.

"The art exhibition will provide a unique opportunity for members of the public to find out about the project and the travelling community from those involved over tea and cakes, while hopefully enjoying the photographs and artwork."

The public exhibition is on next Monday from 10am-5pm.

Top workstations in your home

IF you've ever found yourself standing in the middle of a chaotic kitchen, desperately trying to keep noisy children quiet while simultaneously taking a business telephone call, then you're probably a home worker.

Those toiling in offices may enviously daydream of a life without commuting, office politics, power dressing, and the effort of looking bright on Monday mornings.

Those working from home know that while there are bonuses – from a better work-life balance to staying in pyjamas until the afternoon school run – life away from the water cooler and the office gossip may not be without its difficulties.

If your office is somewhat mobile, perhaps located at one end of the kitchen table and constantly being moved to make way for meals, it can be a recipe for chaos.

Alternatively, gazing at a 'work station' in one corner of a bedroom can make it difficult to mentally switch off and sleep peacefully, and competing for space with the clutter in the spare room also does nothing for the stress levels.

"The key to a successful and functional work area in your home is to take a little time and care planning it to ensure it fits your needs," says Simon Glanville, managing director of storage specialists, STORE. "Even if it's a small space, if you pay attention to the layout and tailor it to meet your needs, you can make all the difference."

He advises taking a hard look at all your living space so you pick exactly the right spot for a work space.

OFFICE SUITE

Corporate spaces are usually characterised by drab desks and grey walls, but there's definitely no need to replicate that at home.

Instead, opt for a tailored workstation and matching storage units in wood effect finishes or perhaps one painted to your colour choice.

A well-equipped area gives an instant first impression of organisation and professionalism, which is particularly important if you have business meetings at home and need to impress.

DESK TO IMPRESS

When Jeff Bezos launched Amazon in his garage he revamped old doors into desks – a nifty money saving idea which you can steal. Use trestles or cupboards as supports on either end.

But if your budget can stretch a little further, a beautiful desk as a piece of stand-alone furniture enhances any room.

CORNER THE SPACE

Fitting a work area into a corner of a room is often the most efficient use of space. Well-designed, attractive furniture, maybe echoing in style the other pieces in the room, will ensure the 'office' doesn't dominate in a multi-purpose room.

CABINET OFFICE

Don't despair even if you feel there's no room for an 'office' in your home. Designers have used their imagination to create small but stylish workstations in cupboards, or if your workload's only occasional you could simply improvise with a laptop table that could double as a side table.

You're in charge, so feel free to treat yourself to some fun or luxury items to make your personal office special.

Good quality lighting is essential. Position a desk where it receives good, natural light, and use a table lamp for close focus work.

CORPORATE PERKS

Home office: Solutions are varied and affordable.

Create a bedroom – then fill it with love

A great place to be: Bedrooms can be creative not just functional.

SMALL children can be boisterous, imaginative and messy little beasts and those endearing qualities mean they make a huge impact on your home.

Their belongings seem to spread into every nook and cranny, and there's no way sensible parents want to spend their whole time stressing about mess or constantly shrieking 'tidy up'.

So the best approach is to create a bedroom that a child loves and one where it's easy to play, feel safe and, most importantly, is fun to be in.

Ideally, the room should be able to grow and change as you child does, so that you're not involved in constant redecoration.

CLASSIC ROOMS

"Plain white or wood furniture provides the perfect backdrop for bed linen and accessories with colour and personality," advises Chrissie Rucker, founder of The White Company.

"Those finishing touches like pretty bunting, pictures and their toy collection make a room extra special."

EXCITING BEDS

They might not quell that rebellious childhood refrain "I don't want to go to bed", but imaginative beds could go a good way to minimising late-night tantrums.

Designers are transforming what is often the largest piece of furniture in a room into exciting play spaces as well as somewhere to sleep.

SMALL SPACES BIG STYLE

Little ones often prefer cosy spaces but you need versatile furniture to make the most of every corner of a compact room.

"Just because it's small, doesn't mean you can't maximise the space," says Fionnuala Johnston, design co-ordinator at B&Q.

DELIGHT IN DETAIL

Think outside the traditional decorating box – blue for a boy, pink for a girl – and try restful greens or perhaps a welcome touch of sunshine yellow for walls.

Try top tips for creating a child friendly room they'll love.

■ Enhance space by painting walls one colour and pick a theme colour for furnishings.

■ Blackout blinds at windows make it easier to settle small children on light evenings and should help them waking at dawn during summer months.

■ Crouch down to your child's height so you can see the room through his eyes. It will help ensure storage is planned so it's easy to reach and use.

Happy times: A bit of imagination can go a long way!

Furniture aces are a must-visit

INTERIORS in Ely prides itself on being much more than just a furniture retail store.

The shop is currently under expansion and now has its very own pine workshop inside the store, which is located at 12 Chequer Lane, between Market Street and the High Street.

The Pine Workshop is

run by Geoff Harland and his skilled assistants including Cameron Balderson, a young apprentice learning the age-old skills of cabinet making. The workshop will manufacture anything from a simple shelf to a fully fitted kitchen.

Interiors Pine Workshop also provides an extensive repair service. If your table leg has split or the top needs renovation, or a wardrobe door come loose, the creative team will fix it for you. If you require a more extensive renovation service they can do that too.

Interiors Pine Workshop will spray or stain from a wide selection of colours and shades, and upholsterer Les Harland can recover all kinds of fabric backed chairs or stools, and all this supported with a collection and delivery service.

Derek Hart spent 18 years on Ely Craft Market selling bespoke pine furniture under the Pine Workshop brand. He now manages the Interiors shop which stocks everything you need to furnish your home. Inside the store you will find sofas and armchairs, dining tables and chairs for kitchens and dining rooms, occasional tables, pictures and mirrors, rugs, fire surrounds, and lots more.

In the first floor bed showroom Mike Tully provides fully fitted bedroom furniture as well as selling top name Divan beds, frames, both in metal and wood, bunk and children's beds, mattresses, headboards and various bedroom pieces ranging from wardrobes to bedside tables.

Interiors Store is friendly and welcoming and works hard to provide that really old fashioned concept of customer service. Pop in and browse, it's well worth the visit or give the team a call on (01353) 659005.

Mark's spuds get thumbs-up

RESIDENTS have learnt there is more to the humble potato than meets the eye.

Mark Petrou, owner of Ely's award-winning Petrou Brothers fish and chip shop, was out on the city's market on Saturday to celebrate National Chip Week.

Sourcing all of his ingredients from the farmers' market, he entertained visitors with a cooking demonstration and proved people can make more than just chips with a spud.

Among the dishes rustled up were smoked haddock fishcakes and mushy pea fritters.

Roz Scott, co-ordinator of the market's cooking demonstrations, said: "Mark's demonstration went down really well."

"He was not only able to work at speed but also make tasty dishes out of ingredients sourced from the market itself."

"People certainly enjoyed the free tasters too!"

Potato master: Mark Petrou shows what can be done with the humble spud at Ely markets. CP

Brother and sister in gang attack at party spared jail

A BROTHER and sister who took part in a vicious gang attack on a young partygoer have been spared prison.

Thomas and Jodie Cavey joined a group of revellers at a party at the derelict Soham bypass motel who were attacking Benjamin Neil, 21, Cambridge Crown Court was told.

The court was told the sustained assault left Mr Neil with cuts to his left eyebrow and cheek after he was kicked repeatedly on the ground by up to six people.

He was also pelted with bottles throughout the attack at the party organised by the old owners of the former Soham Lodge Hotel on June 19 last year.

The trouble had flared following an argument between 18-year-old Jodie Cavey and Mr Neil.

A 17-year-old youth, who cannot be named for legal reasons, then punched Mr Neil in the head before Jodie's 25-year-old brother Thomas weighed in with further blows.

All three defendants later admitted taking part in the attack, but denied throwing any bottles.

BY JACK GROVE

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

Theresa Hay, mitigating for Jodie Cavey, said: "She accepts that when she saw him on the ground, she lost her temper and became involved."

"But it is wholly out of character for her to be involved in offending of any nature."

However, the kicking of the defenceless Mr Neil was the reason Judge Anthony Bate decided she had committed the "worst" offence and ordered her to complete 240 hours of unpaid work in the community as part of an 18-month supervision order.

He also imposed a six-month detention order suspended for 12 months.

Thomas Cavey, of Westgate Street, Bury St Edmunds, was given a six-month prison sentence suspended for 18 months. He was also given an 18-month supervision order, in which he will undergo a six-month alcohol rehab course and a four-month night time curfew.

The 17-year-old, from Fordham, was ordered to complete 100 hours of community service as part of a 12-month supervision order.

Cupid's arrow hits students

LOVE was in the air at the City of Ely Community College on the last day of term on Friday

Members of the college's sixth form student council became cupids for a few hours when they delivered red roses to students.

Pupils were invited to pay between £1.50 for the single roses, and £10 for bunches of up to 12.

Around 187 deliveries were made to students.

A spokesman for the college said: "The roses went down really well with all the pupils. It certainly helped lift the Valentine's spirit and helped to raise much-needed funds at the same time."

All profits will go towards the sixth form's annual May Ball.

Love blossoms: members of the sixth form student council prepare to set off on their deliveries. CP

Arrest over assault

A MAN has been arrested in connection with an assault in Ely.

The incident happened near Pocket Park, in Cresswell Lane, at around 10.45pm last Thursday.

A man in his 30s was taken to Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge with serious injuries.

His injuries are not thought to be life threatening.

Police were called to the scene and the force helicopter was launched to search the area.

The 20-year-old was arrested in the early hours of Friday morning on suspicion of assault. He has been bailed to appear at Ely police station on March 17.

A 14-year-old also arrested has been released without charge.

Anyone with information about the attack is asked to call police on 0345 456 4564

'Look out for falling tiles'

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

SHOPPERS are being warned to be on their guard when entering The Cloisters in Ely.

Roof tiles above the main entrance to the city's popular shopping area have been falling down into the path of pedestrians.

East Cambridgeshire District Council (ECDC) has now put mesh up to stop any tiles from tumbling down.

However, local disabled rights campaigner Arthur Cutter, 68, said it was an "accident waiting to happen".

Mr Cutter, who runs a stall on the city's Thursday market, said: "I saw the council putting the wire up but I can't see that making much difference if a large amount of tiles come falling down."

"I just hope no more do come down as it could be an accident waiting to happen."

"All you need is a tile to hit a child on the head and the injuries could be serious."

"I will certainly be looking above me while walking by there until the coast is clear."

The entrance is located on Market Place, with the tiles falling from the roof above the Card Factory store.

Green mesh and metal bars have been erected on the guttering in a bid to stop more tiles from falling.

However, another concerned pensioner, who did not want to be named, said: "Someone I know actually saw a few of the tiles fall down right onto the pavement."

"I hope the council realises just how serious it could be if more come down."

"It could have been my little grandson walking right under the area at the time and that just doesn't bear thinking about."

However, ECDC insists the area is now safe.

A council spokesman said: "We became aware of a small number of tiles which had come off the building in Market Place on Wednesday night."

"We took immediate action to install safety measures to make sure the roof was made safe and there was no danger to passing members of the public."

"We are now investigating the state of the roof ahead of further repairs being made."

House of fun for children

HISTORY has been revived at Ely's Oliver Cromwell House over the half-term break.

The city's landmark has been filled with families enjoying a wide range of events.

On Tuesday, youngsters were able to meet the kitchen maid at a Times and Measures event, as well as learn about the life of a soldier.

Staff also put on a children's trail around the house where youngsters could discover unusual objects such as hives, urns, leather jugs and forage caps.

Last Saturday, a similar event was held, where children learned ancient recipes and got cooking in the kitchen, and on

Picture: Duncan Lamont 628429.

Valentine's Day, there was a guided walk around the city which started from the house.

A member of staff at the centre said: "The half-term events have been great fun with all the children really enjoying themselves.

"It is great seeing them letting off some steam here and enjoying the school break, plus the parents seem to enjoy it too!"

A monastic tour of Ely will be held on Saturday, starting from the house at 11.30am.

Chamber calls for rethink on NI hike

THREE quarters of small and medium businesses say the recession is not over for their company.

That's according to a monthly survey of chamber members across the UK.

Now Ely Chamber of Commerce is renewing calls for the Government to reconsider alternatives to the planned 1 per cent increase in National Insurance (NI) contributions from April 2011.

A third of SME (small and medium enterprises) surveyed believe that a VAT increase would be the least damaging to their business when compared to increases in NI contributions, corporation tax, fuel duty and capital gains tax.

When asked how they would absorb the cost of the planned NI rise, more than 22 per cent of small businesses said they would have to limit staffing levels, something which the chamber claims will do little to help get the labour market moving again.

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

John Bridge OBE, chief executive of Ely's chamber, said: "What the Government desperately needs to recognise is that they need to offer incentives to businesses, not inflict more costs.

"In particular, the cost of employing people must be reduced if future governments are serious about giving businesses the freedom to create jobs and drive our economic recovery.

"The message from small business here is clear – that an increase in employers' NI contributions would inhibit their ability to generate economic growth.

"Official figures may say we're out of the recession but for many the reality is very different."

The survey also revealed that just under 25 per cent of small businesses believe reducing the regulatory burden should be made the number one priority of a new government.

This follows last month's warnings by the chamber that the region's businesses will be hit with a bill of more than £2.6 billion if the Government goes ahead with plans to introduce multiple new employment regulations and increased taxes directly related to employment that have been planned between April 2010 to April 2014, with eight major changes earmarked for 2011 alone.

Colleges offer advice on finances

FOR some college students, it's not their studies that cause them a headache, but their finances.

As part of our Barclays Money Skills campaign to help readers make the most of their money, we found out how students can get help and advice.

Further education colleges employ staff to provide advice to students on their grants and entitlements, such as the educational maintenance allowance (EMA).

The EMA, worth £30 a week and based on attendance, is for 16 to 18-year-olds who come from a household whose income was less than £30,810 in the previous tax year.

There is an adult version for students aged 19 and over and that is dependent on their income. They receive £30 a week if their income was less than £19,500 in the previous tax year.

Yvonne Boyce, the financial support manager at Cambridge Regional College, said: "Anybody who might find it difficult to get to college because of financial reasons is our customer.

"We have 1,300 students who get the EMA. Attendance is strictly monitored and there are two £100 bonuses – one when they come back after Christmas and one in July when they have finished their course."

Some students can also qualify for money awarded under the Government's Discretionary Learner Support Fund, administered by the Learning and Skills Council. It provides support in exceptional cases for learners aged 16 and over. Each college distributes money on the basis of individual students' needs.

All colleges should be able to offer advice on students' entitlements. In some cases tuition fees can be waived to help students pursue a course that they might otherwise not have embarked upon.

Shingai's rainbows leading the way to recovery – and stardom

IT'S 8.30am in LA when I call Shingai Shoniwa, singer, bassist and glamorously alternative frontwoman of pop trio the Noisettes.

Despite the early hour, and some kind of crisis in the bathroom which I can hear unfolding in the background ("Things are... falling!" she explains after breaking off from our conversation for a full five minutes to attend to it), the 28-year-old is geared up and eager to chat about her upcoming UK tour.

"Oh my God, Cambridge is a wicked place to play," she enthuses, now settled at the phone. "I loved it the last time we played. Every time we've played at Cambridge it's been amazing. It's a really rich, musical town."

Shingai is currently in the US promoting the band's latest album, Wild Young Hearts, which was released in the UK last spring and hit the States in the autumn.

"I've been doing a lot of promo out here – the campaign is still in its adolescence and there's some exciting stuff happening. We've got Estelle and Wale doing a remix of Don't Upset the Rhythm, where they both do a rap on it, and it's doing quite well on the radio."

Many would agree the band is doing rather better than "quite well". Over the past year, the funky trio have exploded onto the music scene, with hits such as Don't Upset the Rhythm (Go Baby Go) and Never Forget You marking them out as something that bit different from the usual manufactured pop acts of today. The Noisettes are pop with an edge – their 1960s-inspired sound carrying punchy punk overtones, brought together by Shingai's astonishing voice, which has been compared to the likes of Dusty Springfield and Billie Holiday.

Shingai Shoniwa of The Noisettes tells JENNIFER SHELTON about a year of triumph and heartache – and the road ahead.

Yet for the band it's been a long journey to the top. They formed in 2003 when Shingai and guitarist Dan Smith, whom she knew from drama school, hooked up with drummer Jamie Morrison. Playing in London pubs and clubs, they built up a following.

"For me, it feels like it's been quite an organic process," says Shingai. "It's not like we came out of nowhere from some kind of X Factor egg or something like that."

"Our first album, although it wasn't that commercially successful, did really well in terms of introducing people to a pop sound that can bring lots of people together from lots of different areas of music."

"I feel like I'm still climbing, to be quite honest. It's been fantastic to see the audiences grow. It's hard to enjoy those things if you haven't played at the pubs and the unis and the working men's clubs and the weddings... All the different live experiences I've had make me appreciate it more."

After years spent just outside the spotlight, Shingai and the band were delighted when one of their songs was picked by Mazda for a large-scale advertising campaign early in 2009. The ad, which featured a shiny lime-green Mazda 2 skimming playfully across a kaleidoscopic floor to the beats of Don't Upset the Rhythm, was broadcast around the world, introducing the then little-known trio to a mass commercial audience.

The single, from the band's second album, Wild Young Things, reached the number 2 spot in the UK singles charts. Sell-out tours, a set at Glastonbury and collaborations with some of the biggest names in music followed.

Yet Shingai had her own personal battles to fight as the success of The Noisettes grew. The band finally on the ascent, while recording their second album, Shingai received a call to say her mother had developed breast cancer.

"It was very, very scary," she admits. "I wanted the music to be part of her repair, like: 'OK, we can do this, we can fight this'."

"She went into her first stage of remission a few months ago, so that's fantastic. She's getting better and the music's going to carry on painting the sky like a rainbow, you know?"

Shingai's family has been a huge part of her musical education and supported her fully on her rise to stardom.

"My mum's always had really brilliant, cool music taste. She used to put on nights with my uncle and promote bands from around the world, particularly South East Africa, at the Africa Centre in London."

"If I got back from school there could be anything on from Nina Simone, Grace Jones, Bob Marley, David Bowie... she was always into pop music that pushed the envelope a little bit – or a lot, actually. It felt really exciting at the time. I've never doubted the power of music to bring people together, and I'm really glad to be part of the renaissance of that."

Growing up in such a musical environment, Shingai began singing early and had soon caught a taste for performing. Today, The Noisettes' live shows feature an explosive mix of music and drama.

"I feel quite at home on stage, and I like to make people feel part of the stage. I never want to take a performance experience for granted."

Shingai trained with a London youth theatre and is also a proficient gymnast. She even dabbled in circus skills as a teenager. So, can we expect any glamorous stunts from Shingai's visit to Cambridge?

"Well... I'll have to say watch this space really! I'm definitely adding a new level to the performance experience every time."

Shingai has toured and performed with some of the industry's biggest names – from Muse to Dizzee Rascal, all of whom she feels put an emphasis on performance.

Despite being surrounded by other talented musicians, Shingai is determined to keep true to her own style.

"I find it weird when people deliberately hunt for and pick up on things that other people are doing. I think there's one thing to being inspired and there's another thing to taking elements of what someone else does."

"I think what makes pop music more interesting is that people like me and Paloma and Adele are all really different from each other. But one thing me and P have in common is that we really relish and will go the length regarding performance. I think performance is often lost so I respect anyone who's making that important."

■ The Noisettes will be performing at the Cambridge Corn Exchange on February 23 at 7.30pm. Tickets cost £14.30. Contact (01223) 357851 / www.cornex.co.uk

Charity concert

PEOPLE are being reminded about a major fundraising concert being held in Ely on Saturday.

Much-loved composer John Rutter will be performing in The King School Ely's Hayward Theatre to help raise money for the NSPCC.

Sutton resident Sylvia Farmer has organised the event.

Running from 11am-4.45pm, last-minute tickets are still available, priced at £15 each and £10 for under-18s. All proceeds go directly to the charity.

For tickets, call Sylvia on (01353) 777373.

Big night ahead

MUSIC fans are invited to the Rotary Club of Ely's Big Band Night, featuring Opus 17.

Playing music from the 1940s and 50s, the event will be held at the Hayward Theatre, Ely, tomorrow.

Last-minute tickets are still available, at £12 each.

The event starts at 8pm and all cash raised will go directly to local charities.

For tickets, visit Wades Optometrists on Ely High Street or Burrows Bookshop in The Passage.

Play on track

LAST-MINUTE tickets for the City of Ely Amateur Dramatic Society's production of The Railway Children are still available.

The family-friendly play is being staged at the City of Ely Community College until Saturday, nightly at 7.30pm.

Tickets are £7 for adults, £5 for under-16s, and available by calling (01353) 669759 or visiting Burrows Bookshop, Ely.

THOM YORKE, the lead vocalist and principle songwriter with Radiohead, is to play a rare solo gig in Cambridge.

The show, a fundraiser for the Green Party, will be at the Corn Exchange next Thursday with experimental Cambridge solo artist Pete Um as support.

most influential figures in popular music but is also well known as a political activist against climate change and globalisation.

Last December he made news when he spoke out about the failures of the Copenhagen climate talks after accessing the conference as a member of the media.

In 2005 he was a spokesperson for the Friends of the Earth campaign The Big Ask, calling on the government for legally binding year-on-year cuts in carbon emissions.

Tony Juniper, the Green Party General Election candidate in Cambridge, said: "I asked Thom if he would help out by doing a benefit concert. As a man who is passionate about the environment and social equity, Thom wants to hear voices in Parliament fighting for these often overlooked issues.

"I feel privileged that he is supporting us."

Tickets, at £32.50, are on sale at the Corn Exchange, www.cornex.co.uk

Boy band Westlife set to return to racecourse

CHART-topping boy band Westlife will be performing at this summer's concerts at Newmarket racecourse.

The band, which is making a return to the racecourse after a sell-out appearance in 2006, is the fourth act to be announced for the Newmarket Nights series of shows after Friday night race meetings.

The series, run in association with radio station Heart FM, already includes Simply Red, Spandau Ballet and James Morrison.

Westlife – Mark Feehily, Shane Filan, Kian Egan and Nicky Byrne – took a year off in 2008 after an unprecedented run of 14 number one singles and 10 chart-topping albums.

In 2009, they released a new album, Where We Are, which featured their latest hit single What About Now.

August date: Westlife, whose performance in 2006 was one of the fastest selling Newmarket Nights.

This year they will be on tour with Newmarket as one of the dates on Friday, August 13. Stephen Wallis, Newmarket Racecourses managing director, said: "We are delighted to be welcoming Westlife back to Newmarket Nights. Their performance in 2006 was one of the fastest selling Newmarket Nights we have had and I am sure they will be as popular in 2010."

The remaining three acts for the series of seven shows have yet to be announced.

Tickets can be booked online at www.newmarketracecourses.co.uk or by calling 0844 579 3010.

Timeless romantic classic

LOVE, loss and mistaken identities come together in the classic romance Twelfth Night, brought to the Cambridge Arts Theatre by the Marlowe Society.

The play follows the fate of shipwrecked heroine Viola who, believing her twin brother to have drowned, finds herself alone in a strange land.

Disguised as a young page, she looks for work and enters the service of the Duke Orsino. Viola soon falls in love with the Duke, who in turn is attempting to woo the untouchable widow Olivia. When Olivia mistakes Viola for a boy, things get decidedly more complicated. Only the reappearance of the heroine's missing twin will ensure a happy ending for all.

Written in 1620-21, Twelfth Night's timeless themes and memorable characters has made it one of Shakespeare's most celebrated and frequently performed plays.

The young actors of the Marlowe Society will be giving a fresh look to this classic, which runs until Saturday at 7.45pm.

The big film

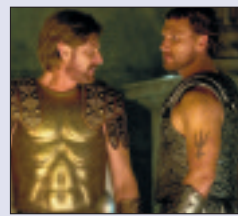

PERCY JACKSON & THE LIGHTNING THIEF (PG, 118 mins) Fantasy. Logan Lerman, Brandon T Jackson, Alexandra Daddario, Pierce Brosnan, Catherine Keener, Jake Abel, Joe Pantoliano, Kevin McKidd, Sean Bean, Uma Thurman, Steve Coogan, Rosario Dawson. Director: Chris Columbus.

YOU wait years for an all-action adventure inspired by Greek mythology, and then two come along.

Next month promises the remake of the 1981 sword and sandals epic Clash Of The Titans, replacing Ray Harryhausen's beloved stop-motion animated monsters with a miasma of digitally rendered beasts.

Here, Percy Jackson & The Lightning Thief juxtaposes the very same battle of the Gods on Mount Olympus, and the exploits of a teenage boy destined for greatness, based on the first of five books by Rick Riordan.

Chris Columbus, who directed the first two Harry Potter films, is a safe pair of hands behind the camera of this big budget extravaganza, seamlessly melding live action and CGI.

The similarities with JK Rowling's boy wizard are evident: a tormented hero oblivious to his noble bloodline; a brainy female sidekick and a wise-cracking best friend who accompany the hero on his quest; a Half Blood camp where the protagonists hone their skills; and benevolent centaurs and other magical creatures.

Screenwriter Craig Titiley tries to distance the characters from the students of Hogwarts by upping the ages in the book from 12 to 17, thereby introducing some additional growing pains.

Percy Jackson (Lerman) is struggling at high school and rowing constantly with his mother Sally (Keener), who has married a loser called Gabe (Pantoliano). During a visit to a museum, the troubled teenager learns a shocking secret – he is the son of Poseidon (McKidd), god of the sea, and a war is brewing because Zeus (Bean) believes – quite wrongly – that Percy has stolen his lightning bolt.

Moreover, best friend Grover (Jackson) is a weird man-goat hybrid: "The politically correct term is Satyr," retorts Grover, charged with protecting Percy from evil.

Spirited away to Camp Half Blood, Percy begins his training with centaur Chiron (Brosnan) and the other demi-god children including Annabeth (Daddario), daughter of Athena, and Luke (Abel), son of Hermes.

When Hades (Coogan) enslaves Percy's mother and promises her safe return in exchange for the stolen lightning bolt, the teenager embarks on a quest to the underworld accompanied by Grover and Annabeth, pitting the teenagers against fearsome adversaries.

Percy Jackson & The Lightning Thief recalls Harry Potter And The Philosopher's Stone, sacrificing in-depth characterisation for the sake of eye-popping thrills and a brisk pace.

Cutting the confusion over colourful climbing clematis

I love the huge flowers of hybrid clematis as they climb up trellis and fencing, or weave their way through less interesting shrubs, wrap themselves around tree trunks and scramble over old walls to create a burst of colour, often in shadier places.

They make perfect companions entwined with deliciously scented climbing roses covering arches and pagodas in the romantic garden, or simply climbing up unsightly walls or fences.

In fact, different types of clematis can provide you with flowers for most of the year.

Yet, clematis are the climbers which cause the most confusion when it comes to pruning because there are three groups of them, and if you prune the wrong type at the wrong time you'll ruin your chances for blooms this year.

Group 1 clematis, which flower in spring, bloom on

by Hannah Stephenson

stems which grew the previous year and are generally pruned after flowering. They are often rampant growers with large numbers of relatively small flowers – C. macropetala and C. montana are well-known examples. Prune them straight after flowering by clipping the sideshoots back to a few buds of the main framework.

They should not be pruned in the winter, or you'll cut off all the shoots and lose the new season's flowers.

Now is the time to prune summer-flowering clematis, the Group 2 types, which bloom on stems produced in the current season. They are pruned in late winter or early spring to remove much of last year's growth. If left unchecked they will produce flowers, but they will tend to be at the end of the plant.

Group 2 clematis include many of the large-flowered hybrids, including the most famous pink striped variety 'Nelly Moser' and the rich purple 'The President'.

The aim with pruning Group 2 clematis is to retain a framework of old wood, and also to stimulate new shoots to maximise flowering throughout the season.

Unless the plant already has three or four healthy stems growing from the base, all newly-planted clematis should be pruned back hard the first spring after planting. Cut back to just above a strong pair of leaf buds about 30cm above soil level. This will encourage multiple stems which can be trained into supports to give a good coverage.

With established plants, remove dead or weak stems before growth begins, check individual stems from the top down until you reach a pair of healthy buds, and prune just above them, removing the spindly or damaged growth above. The ones that flower first in early summer, and again in late summer, need a tidy-up rather than a heavy prune.

Those which must be pruned now are those which don't start flowering until June, and keep going until the autumn, as they make vigorous growth and only flower on the very ends of the shoots.

They can be cut back to a pair of fresh green buds about 30cm in early spring, and then new growth tied into the supports.

Some mid to late summer flowering clematis can be treated as either Group 2 or Group 3, as desired, including 'Comtesse de Bouchaud', 'Gipsy Queen' and 'Hagley Hybrid'.

Group 3 are late summer and autumn-flowering clematis including viticella and texensis and some large-flowered types including 'Niobe' and 'Perle d'Azur'. They flower on both last year's and the current season's growth. In the first year, prune them back in late winter or early spring to the lowest pair of healthy-looking buds you can find, which will be about 30-90cm above the ground. This may mean cutting off green, healthy shoots, but the plant will reshoot from the base and be better for it.

BEST OF THE BUNCH

Iris reticulata

10cm flowers in shades of blue or maroon are a welcome respite from an often colourless scene at this time of year.

The flowers appear weeks ahead of the grassy leaves, and bulbs should be planted in autumn in a sunny, well-drained spot, ideally a rockery or scree bed.

Good hybrids include I. 'Harmony', which is rich blue, I. 'Katharine Hodgkin', which is pale blue veined, and I. 'J.S. Dijt', which is purple.

Lost letters 1

In each of these puzzles a famous or popular quotation fills the grid. The individual letters remain in their correct column, but have fallen out and are out of order. Reinsert them in the correct order to find the answer. Any punctuation is given in its own square.

The first quotation is from Benjamin Franklin.
 The answer will be given next week.

YOUR GUIDE TO MOVING HOME

1 Moving home can be a complicated business and, in the hectic run to the big day, it is all too easy to forget something vital. The Property News offers their readers this handy checklist that should help avoid major pitfalls. We suggest you tick off the items as you deal with them...

WITH FOUR WEEKS TO GO:

- ☐ Get estimates from removal companies, checking that comprehensive insurance cover is available against damage or loss. Is there a packing and unpacking service? Confirm the date of your move with the firm you have chosen.
- ☐ Check on your home contents insurance policies to ensure that you are covered for the move, and covered at your new address.
- ☐ Make arrangements for your gas and electricity meters (plus water meters where relevant) to be read and all your appliances to be disconnected on the day of your move.
- ☐ Arrange to take over gas and electricity at your new address, and make sure that all appliances will be properly fitted, plumbed or connected.
- ☐ Notify British Telecom and ask them to make the necessary arrangements for a final account at your present address, and for taking over or installing telephone facilities at your new home.
- ☐ Arrange for change of address cards to be printed.

WITH TWO WEEKS TO GO:

- ☐ Confirm all arrangements, times etc, for meter readings, disconnections and reconnections, with authorities and with your buyer and seller.
- ☐ Make sure you have a good stock of packing materials, including sturdy boxes and plenty of string and sticky tape.
- ☐ Begin to throw out unwanted items from attics, wardrobes. What you really don't want you may as well dump now, or send to charity. It's a great time for a good sort out!

WITH ONE WEEK TO GO:

- ☐ Send off change of address cards.
- ☐ Arrange and pay for automatic redirection of your mail by the Post Office.
- ☐ Cancel and pay up accounts for routine delivery services such as milk, groceries, fuel and your Cambridge Evening News. Re-organise these deliveries for your new address.
- ☐ Defrost refrigerators in preparation for move and, if you are moving a freezer and its contents, turn it up to maximum for a couple of days before you move.

WITH ONE DAY TO GO:

- ☐ Complete your packing except for those items you are likely to need overnight, and prepare a picnic for moving day.
- ☐ Have a large enough cash 'float' available to deal with unexpected expenses, and make sure you have collected documents and valuables together in a safe place.
- ☐ Cover carpets which are being left behind, so as to minimise damage during furniture removal.
- ☐ Check through previous lists to make sure nothing has been overlooked, then enjoy a worry-free early night!

2 ON MOVING DAY:

- ☐ Strip beds and pack bedding and nightclothes.
- ☐ Pack items for washing/toiletries.
- ☐ Take down curtains.
- ☐ Take up rugs, carpets, floor coverings, as required.
- ☐ Dismantle any light fittings etc., not included in the sale.
- ☐ Turn off electric appliances.
- ☐ Disconnect cooker.
- ☐ Turn off boiler/central heating.
- ☐ Turn off water.
- ☐ Read gas meter.
- ☐ Read electricity meter.
- ☐ Secure all windows.
- ☐ Lock all doors.
- ☐ Leave key as arranged with new owners.
- ☐ On arrival at your new home, unpack slowly and methodically so that you can check for loss or damage.

3 EXTRA HINTS FOR A SMOOTH MOVE...

WHO TO NOTIFY:

- ☐ Banks.
- ☐ Building Societies.
- ☐ Credit companies.
- ☐ Insurance companies.
- ☐ Gas, Electricity and Water Boards.
- ☐ Telephone company.
- ☐ Local Authority (Rating Department).
- ☐ Driving Licence authorities.
- ☐ Inland Revenue.
- ☐ Store cards and accounts.
- ☐ Other lease, hire or rental companies.
- ☐ Employer.
- ☐ Doctor.
- ☐ Dentist.
- ☐ Schools.
- ☐ Professional Bodies/Trade Unions.
- ☐ Motoring organisations.
- ☐ Newsagent.
- ☐ Friends and relatives.

Nissan gets launch fever ...

...Cube and 370Z delights on show

MARSHALL Nissan will be under the microscope from February 19 to 21 as "Close Up: A Weekend Designed by Nissan", takes place at the dealership. The event is a celebration of the Nissan design ethic manifested in the latest Qashqai, Cube and 370Z Roadster models.

Marshall Nissan is inviting customers to come to the Newmarket Road dealership and view the stunning new models 'in-the-metal'.

The three models capture the essence of Nissan design perfectly; the Cube's iconic design has already been named as one of the top 50 cars that changed the world by the London Design Museum.

The 370Z Roadster has been redesigned from the ground-up as an open-top sports car with performance remaining completely undiluted. The car retains the structural rigidity of a coupe – an area in which many performance roadsters are often found lacking – to give an equally dynamic driving experience.

One undeniable advantage of having the roof down is the increased aural opportunity it affords to listen to the glorious engine note produced by the 324bhp V6 petrol engine. All of which is transferred to the road via the classic front-engine/rear-wheel drive roadster layout.

Refinement is the watch-word for the revised 2010 Qashqai. Built at Nissan's Sunderland plant, the most notable visual change to the Qashqai is at the front, where a complete makeover has taken place. All new bonnet, front bumper, wings, grille and headlamps combine to give the Qashqai an air of premium sophistication, presence and quality. The new front-end design is shared with Qashqai +2.

What's more, all visitors to the event will be entered into a national prize draw to win a trip to Japan – including return Premium Economy tickets to Tokyo, seven nights stay at the Park Hotel, Tokyo, £1,000 spending money and a Samsung HD flash camcorder.

In addition, one visitor to Marshall Nissan in Cambridge will win £250 in vouchers to spend at design-orientated store Habitat.

The Peugeot RCZ: So beautiful.

Peugeot RCZ 'most beautiful car of 2009'

PEUGEOT'S eagerly-awaited RCZ Coupe, on sale in the UK in May, has just been named the most beautiful car of 2009 by organisers of the 25th International Automobile Festival in Paris.

The RCZ, to be priced from £20,450 was selected from the votes cast by more than 100,000 internet users in 62 countries worldwide. Peugeot is currently celebrating its 200-year anniversary – it was in 1810 that Jean-Pierre and Jean-Frederic Peugeot turned their father's cereal mill into a steel foundry, thus taking the family into the industrial era.

Iconic: The Nissan Cube.

The Juke: Going for a song

NISSAN is set to cash in on the growing clamour for small crossovers when it launches the stunning new Juke in October.

The firm's Qashqai crossover is a runaway bestseller, but the more modestly proportioned five-door Juke could exceed all sales expectations by muscling in on the trend for downsizing into more economical, planet-friendly motors.

That is fantastic news for Britain – like the mid-sized Qashqai, it will be built at Nissan's Sunderland plant in the North East.

The Juke's coupe-cum-sports utility vehicle (SUV) looks were created at the firm's design centre in London, before going over to Japan for final fine-tuning, plus full engineering input.

Nissan hasn't yet released full Juke pricing or technical details, but expect to pay around £13,000 for the starter model. That figure will also help the Juke see off a few Audi A1 supermini buyers, which will also cost from £13,000 upwards when it launches here at around the same time as the Juke.

It will get three engines at the outset, a 1.5-litre diesel, and two 1.6-litre petrols, one of them turbocharged. Most models will be two-wheel drive, with the flagship automatic version of the petrol turbo model being offered with four-wheel ability.

Nissan also claims that the boosted petrol engine provides the power and responses expected from a 2.5-litre engine, but with the economy of a smaller engine, and the Juke's 'come-buy-me' look is a tale of two halves.

The small SUV's bottom half is pure off-roader, with chunky wheels, wide tyres, higher ground clearance, and a purposeful stance.

The top half is clearly cultivating the coupe effect, thanks to the Juke's high waistline, side glass that slims down dramatically towards the rear, and a distinctly sporty, sloping roofline.

Door handles at the rear are Dramatic: The Nissan Juke will be priced from around £13,000.

also inset in the upper frame to avoid breaking the car's dynamic, flowing lines, and the cabin comes with a unique console design – it's based on a motorbike's fuel tank!

Finished in a distinctive high gloss, the bike-like console also instills a strong fun element in the car, while the need for practicality hasn't been forgotten. There's good access for cargo through the hatchback door, and the luggage area has out-of-sight storage areas for more valuable items.

Simon Thomas, Nissan's European senior vice president for sales, says the Juke will join the big Murano and Focus-sized Qashqai to cement his firm's position as the leading brand in the crossover market.

Juke, incidentally, is a verb that means to move in a zig-zag fashion, but there should be no zig-zagging by this Nissan in the sales charts – it's a fair bet that it will simply go in a straight line to the top.

Interior: Snazzy and practical.

March launch: For the Chevrolet Spark.

Chevrolet Sparks into supermini life

CHEVROLET aims to capture a slice of the hugely successful mini-car segment with its latest launch, the Spark.

The newcomer has been designed to appeal to car buyers in every inhabited continent across the globe, from India to Africa, Australia to the US.

But it's in Europe where Spark will find its true identity. The bodysheet is exceptionally stiff, with no external panel gaps greater than 3mm, and the fit and finish of the interior is designed to match, if not beat that of cars in a class or two above.

Yet despite the quality, Spark is also designed to be edgy, vibrant and fresh, as well as to offer exceptional levels of space and practicality.

both petrol units with displacements of 1.0 and 1.2-litres.

Both units are closely related and use a cast iron block and alloy head, with a double overhead camshaft and four valves per cylinder. They feature multi-port fuel injection and are both Euro V emissions compliant.

The two engines use advanced features such as port de-activation technology to improve exhaust gas recirculation, leading to optimal fuel efficiency and idle stability, along with a timing chain to ensure a lifetime of low maintenance and running costs.

Practicality is a big plus, too. It may not be very big on the outside, but the Chevrolet Spark's clever design means it is able to make the most out of its available space.

Front seat passengers enjoy up to 1067mm of available legroom (893mm in the rear), while shoulder space of 1295mm (1255mm rear) and headroom of 1010mm (947mm) are also rated among the very best in the segment, proving that even when a car is small, it doesn't need to be cramped.

With five doors and five available seats, the Spark is one of the most space-efficient cars in the mini segment.

Much of the interior space is down to the car's clever design – details such as the steering column-mounted instrument pod and longer than average wheelbase allowed the designers to reduce cabin intrusion, allowing for as much space between the axles as possible.

On top of this, the cabin was planned to accommodate as much supplementary storage space as possible.

The centre console, for example, incorporates a bin for carrying smaller items such as a mobile phone, MP3 player or packet of chewing gum, while there's also a double cup/drinks holder ahead of the gearstick.

All of this in such a compact package: at only 3640mm long and 1597mm wide, it will easily squeeze into tight city spaces, yet thanks to its short overhangs and clever cabin design, the compact dimensions come without compromise.

The Spark will get UK launch next month. Pricing details to follow soon.

Kia offers a Ray of sunshine

KIA Motors has unveiled its "Ray" plug-in Hybrid concept at the 2010 Chicago Auto Show, to highlight its innovative fuel-stretching and emissions-cutting technologies.

The "Ray" concept is designed to be powered by an all-aluminum 153-horsepower Gasoline Direct Injection (GDI) 1.4-litre engine mated to a permanently-engaged fixed ratio Continuously Variable Transmission (CVT), used in combination with a 78kw electric motor.

Details on the UK launch are expected in due course.

Most stressy car horns named

THE Fiat Punto's car horn has the beep that causes most stress to motorists, according to new findings out this week from AXA.

Maker	Mental Stress
1. Fiat Punto	0.8
2. Vauxhall Astra	0.6
3. Nissan Extra	0.44
4. Ford Focus	0.37
5. Seat Ibiza	0.36
6. BMW 320	0.35
7. Ford Fiesta	0.35
8. Ford Galaxy	0.32
9. Peugeot 307	0.32
10. Saab 93	0.31

In a unique experiment, its horn had the most profound effect on people's heart rate, skin conductance and brain activity – key stress indicators.

The findings of the experiment kick off a wider 'Respect on the Road' campaign that will highlight the effect of disrespectful driving behaviours and encourage greater courtesy on British roads. The majority of drivers (79 per cent) feel there is a lack of respect on the roads today and nearly half (48 per cent) view a horn honked in anger as the second most disrespectful thing another driver could do to them.

Travel writer Charley Boorman has been brought on board as the campaign's ambassador and to urge people to air their views on the state of social behaviour on the roads today at www.axarespectontheroad.com.

For the stress experiment, neuroscience specialists Mindlab connected participants to biometric monitoring equipment and recorded signals from their brains to show demands made on memory and to determine the relative distraction of horns on the top 20 best-selling cars. Following close behind the Fiat Punto on the stressful car horn scale was the Vauxhall Astra in second place and the Nissan Extra in third.

Supporting research of 2,000 UK adults has found that almost half (41 per cent) of drivers feel stressed when others use their horn and a further 54 per cent think people use their car horns inappropriately. The majority (59 per cent) think this is because other drivers are too impatient and nearly half (48 per cent) think it is due to a lack of respect.

Some 43 per cent of drivers say they have been a victim of road rage – the most common of these being a honk of the horn or hand gesture – and half of drivers have admitted to using their car horn in an aggressive manner.

There is also a lack of knowledge about when the car horn should be used on British roads. More than two thirds (69 per cent) of people do not know it is illegal to use the horn when the car is stationary, and almost a third (31 per cent) wrongly thought they could use their horn in built-up areas during certain hours of the night.

Experienced driver Charley Boorman, comments: "I've driven on roads all over the world and have seen some of the best and worst driving you can imagine.

"In Britain we may be known for politeness but one thing that drives me mad is inconsiderate motorists using their horn whenever they feel like it. As the AXA campaign is trying to show; the horn is there for one reason – safety – not to make people's commutes more stressful than they need to be."

Tina Shortle, marketing director at AXA Insurance, commented: "We hope this study will highlight the stress car horns can bring, and make people think twice about using their car horn aggressively.

"Pressing horns out of frustration is just one of the ways people show a lack of respect on the road. By highlighting the discourteous way in which people act when driving, our ongoing campaign aims to bring respect back onto the roads and improve driving experience.

"We're asking them to think about why they behave that way in their car, when they wouldn't act like that on foot."

In a bid to encourage respect on the road, AXA is asking people to make sure they use their car horns in the most respectful and law-abiding way when on the road.

Consider a winter conditions course

WINTER weather brings many challenges, not least for drivers who are faced with unpredictable road conditions and risks. The cold, ice and snow are some of the biggest issues for many and it is therefore important to be prepared for what lies ahead on the roads.

The Mercedes-Benz Driving Academy, at Mercedes-Benz World, has launched a user-friendly course designed to prepare drivers of all capabilities for winter conditions. This is part of an initiative to increase road safety by equipping drivers with the skills that are needed in order to consider and react to the dangers on the road.

Such preparations could also save money on repair bills and insurance premiums should anything happen that could have been avoided.

With the purpose-built handling circuits and driving facilities at Mercedes-Benz World, the Mercedes-Benz Driving Academy can offer drivers the ability to prepare for ice and snow. From cornering to pulling out onto an icy road with the hypothetical risks of oncoming traffic, the low friction, wet grip surfaces allow drivers to develop skills by simulating driving in icy conditions.

Dermot Kelly, managing director Mercedes-Benz

Passenger Cars, commented: "Mercedes-Benz leads the way in safety technology and now with our winter driving course we take this a step further. The advanced low grip surfaces of the wet skid circle and straight mean that any driver can experience – in safety – how a car reacts on the limit in icy conditions and most importantly how to deal with a problem should one arise out on the road. To experience a car spinning through 360 degrees is a daunting prospect, so to do so on the safe and controlled purpose-built circuits at Mercedes-Benz World offers an invaluable lesson for everyone, whatever their level of experience."

The winter driving course is tailored to each individual driver. This means the course can develop specific skills to help drivers overcome fears from previous experiences on the roads, or cover a broad range of skills for drivers to be prepared in the future.

The course is held at Mercedes-Benz World, located in Weybridge, Surrey. The one hour duration includes both discussion and driving elements on a one-to-one basis with a professional driver in one of the latest Mercedes-Benz models.

The Winter Driving Course is available for £100. To book or discuss the course with a member of the team, call 0845 123 00 55 or alternatively visit www.mbdriivingacademy.com.

Get your brand closer to people's lives

No other medium is as close to people's hearts as Regional Press. Consumers consider it an integral part of their community.

The effectiveness of regional press advertising in driving sales comes down to the simple fact that people prefer to do most of their spending close to where they live.

Consumers' Choice V, a national consumer survey by TNS Media, found that regional press advertising is the most frequently acted upon, with 61% of people responding to it¹.

No wonder brands enjoy a closer relationship with consumers when advertised in this, the most trusted and effective medium of all.

Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004

Statement of Supplementary Planning Document Matters, Representation Procedure, and Arrangements for Inspection of the Cambridgeshire & Peterborough Minerals and Waste Local Development Framework Supplementary Planning Documents (SPDs)

Block Fen/Langwood Fen Master Plan Draft SPD
Location and Design of Waste Management Facilities Draft SPD
RECAP (Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Waste Partnership) Waste Management Design Guide Draft SPD

Having complied with the requirements of Regulation 17 of the Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2004 (as amended by the Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) (Amendment) Regulations 2009) Cambridgeshire County Council and Peterborough City Council ("the Councils") have jointly prepared three draft Minerals and Waste Supplementary Planning Documents (SPDs) and, before they prepare these SPDs for adoption, the Councils invite representations from the public and interested bodies on these documents.

Proposed subject matter and area: The document provides detailed guidance on the development of the Block Fen/Langwood Fen area to supplement the policies in the Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Minerals and Waste Submission Core Strategy Development Plan Document (DPD). This SPD is intended to provide additional guidance on the phasing and working of mineral reserves; waste recycling and disposal; enhancement of habitat; water storage; recreation and leisure; traffic; and sustainable use of soils. The document applies to the Block Fen/Langwood Fen area of Cambridgeshire (as defined in the Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Minerals and Waste Plan Core Strategy) which is in the administrative area of Cambridgeshire County Council.

Title of document: Location and Design of Waste Management Facilities Draft Supplementary Planning Document

Proposed subject matter and area: The document provides detailed guidance on the location and design of waste management facilities over the Plan period to 2026. This Guide has been prepared in order to significantly raise the standard of design and operation of waste management facilities in Cambridgeshire and Peterborough, and to demonstrate how these facilities can be developed in both urban and rural settings. The SPD sets out a series of development principles based on recognised good planning and good design practice. The document applies to the whole of the administrative areas of Cambridgeshire County Council and Peterborough City Council.

Title of document: RECAP (Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Waste Partnership) Waste Management Design Guide Draft Supplementary Planning Document

Proposed subject matter and area: The document provides detailed guidance in relation to the design and provision of waste storage, collection and recycling facilities required as part of residential and/or commercial developments; and the requirements for expanded and/or additional household waste management infrastructure. The document applies to the whole of the administrative areas of Cambridgeshire County Council and Peterborough City Council.

Period for representations: Representations on all or any of these proposals may be made between 15th February and 5pm on 29th March 2010. All representations must be received within this timescale.

Making representations:

Representations in respect of the Block Fen/Langwood Fen Master Plan Draft SPD, the Location and Design of Waste Management Facilities Draft SPD and the RECAP (Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Waste Partnership) Waste Management Design Guide Draft SPD can be made on-line at <http://consult.peterborough.gov.uk/portal>. Alternatively, the Draft SPD representation form is available to download from the Councils websites (www.cambridgeshire.gov.uk and www.peterborough.gov.uk). It is also available on request from the Councils, or to be collected at all inspection points and exhibitions listed below. Representations must be made using the online system or by completing the official representation form.

Completed representation forms can be emailed to mvplan@cambridgeshire.gov.uk or planningpolicy@peterborough.gov.uk Or sent by post / fax to

Mrs Ann Barnes
Principal Planning Officer

Tel: 01733 863851
Fax: 01733 453505

Representations should specify the relevant SPD, the topic, and paragraph numbering to which they relate, and follow the guidance set out on the representation form.

Notification of further stages: Representations may be accompanied by a request to be notified at a specified address of the publication of all or any of the SPD's i.e. the Block Fen/Langwood Fen Master Plan Draft SPD, the Location and Design of Waste Management Facilities Draft SPD and the RECAP (Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Waste Partnership) Waste Management Design Guide Draft SPD.

Availability of Documents for Inspection

Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004
Statement of the Representations Procedure and Arrangements for Inspection of the Cambridgeshire & Peterborough Minerals and Waste Plan Submission Development Plan Documents (DPDs)

Minerals and Waste Core Strategy (Submission) DPD

Minerals and Waste Proposals Map (Submission) DPD

In accordance with Regulation 27 of the Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) (Amendment) Regulations 2008, Cambridgeshire County Council and Peterborough City Council ("the Councils") have jointly prepared two Minerals and Waste Development Plan Documents for submission to the Secretary of State. The Councils invite representations from the public and interested bodies on these documents.

Title of document: Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Minerals and Waste Core Strategy (Submission) Development Plan Document

Proposed subject matter and area: The document sets out the Councils' strategic vision and objectives for future development and management of minerals and waste within Cambridgeshire and Peterborough, including strategic site allocations over the Plan period to 2026. The document also contains a suite of development control policies to guide minerals and waste development. The Core Strategy has been subject to a Sustainability Appraisal which can be read alongside the Core Strategy.

The document applies to the whole of the administrative areas of Cambridgeshire County Council and Peterborough City Council.

Title of document: Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Minerals and Waste Site Specific Proposals (Submission) Development Plan Document

Proposed subject matter and area: The document sets out the Councils' allocations for site specific proposals for future development and management of minerals and waste within Cambridgeshire and Peterborough. It identifies site specific land allocations for future minerals and waste management development and other supporting site specific policies. The Site Specific Proposals have been subject to a Sustainability Appraisal which can be read alongside the Site Specific Proposals Plan. The document applies to the whole of the administrative areas of Cambridgeshire County Council and Peterborough City Council.

Title of document: Cambridgeshire and Peterborough Minerals and Waste Proposals Map (Submission) Development Plan Document

Proposed subject matter and area: The document sets out in map form the Councils' allocations for the future development and management of minerals and waste within Cambridgeshire and Peterborough. It identifies site specific land allocations, Minerals Safeguarding Areas, Minerals and Waste Consultation Areas and Transport Zones. The document applies to the whole of the administrative areas of Cambridgeshire County Council and Peterborough City Council.

Period for representations: Representations on either or both of these DPD's may be made between 15 February and 5 pm on 29 March 2010. All representations must be received within this timescale.

Address for representations:

Representations in respect of the Core Strategy (Submission) DPD and the Site Specific Proposals (Submission) DPD can be made on-line at <http://consult.peterborough.gov.uk/portal>. Alternatively, the DPD representation form is available to download from the Councils websites www.cambridgeshire.gov.uk and www.peterborough.gov.uk. It is also available on request from the Councils, or to be collected at all inspection points and exhibitions listed below.

Representations must be made using the online system or by completing the official representation form.

Your CV

When you send your CV off to a potential employer, remember that you won't be the only one. Hundreds of other people could be applying for the job as well.

So what are you going to do to make you stand out from the crowd? Why should an employer take a chance on you instead of someone else?

Your CV is your first real chance to sell yourself to a potential employer. Most employers will scan through a CV in about 30 seconds so you need to grab their attention from the start - and make them want to invite you for an interview.

There are five main areas to consider when writing your CV:

- Make sure your CV looks the part. Your CV should look clean and tidy - don't scrawl it out on a piece of A4 paper. If you haven't got access to a PC or printer, ask a friend or use your local library. Use a good quality paper and steer clear of fancy borders and front covers.

- Watch out for silly spelling and grammar mistakes. They make you look lazy and show employers that you don't really care. It's not difficult to do a spell check on your PC and if you're really stuck then don't just guess, reach for a dictionary. Get a friend to read through your CV for you - a second opinion is always useful.

- Make sure your CV is well organised. When you list your previous jobs, make sure the dates are correct and try not to leave any gaps. If you took time out to go travelling then say so - employers won't mark you down just because you've tried something new.

- Don't waffle. Remember that employers don't have time to read every word of your CV. Long paragraphs and sentences put people off, so try bullet-points to break up text. Make sure your CV is no longer than two pages long - employers don't want your life history, they just want to see that you've got what it takes to do the job.

- Don't list any failures. Employers have enough trouble finding someone who is right for the job - they don't need help finding reasons not to employ you. If you have to include a mistake from your past, make sure you show the employer that you learnt something from the experience.

Keep it simple

Personal details

Start off with your full name, address, date of birth, home and mobile phone numbers, email address and nationality. If you are offered an interview, the employer will want to get hold of you so give him as many options as possible.

Summary/professional profile

This is the No1 area for selling yourself. Set out your main skills and personal qualities but keep it interesting and tight - one paragraph should do to cover everything.

Education and qualifications

List your qualifications and education history, with the most recent first. You don't need to list the grades for each exam you have passed unless they were exceptional results - simply listing the number and type of exams you've passed is fine. Also, list any relevant professional organisations you belong to and training courses you have been on.

Work experience

Start with your most recent position and work backwards, giving addresses along with start and finish dates. Set out your main responsibilities, duties and most importantly achievements, along with any skills you picked up or improvements you made while you were there. This is a really important section in your CV so make it count - but don't waffle.

If you have not had a full-time job before, detail any part-time jobs you may have held or any placement you have been on.

Other skills

Set out any computer skills you may have and the software you are most familiar with. Can you type, do shorthand or speak a foreign language fluently? If you have a driving licence, let the employer know. If it's clean, tell them.

Interests & hobbies

Briefly list what you get up to in your spare time. Put down any positions you hold in clubs or associations, along with any responsibilities and achievements.

References

Make sure you have at least two people (including one from your previous or current job) who will tell an employer what a thoroughly nice person you are and what a potential asset to the company you would be.

If you want to list them now make sure you include their name, job title, postal & e-mail address and contact phone numbers. Alternatively, just put "Available on request" so the employer knows to follow up references at a later date.

Add a covering letter

The main aim of a covering letter is to encourage an employer to give you a chance. You want them to read your CV, so sell it to them. You should always enclose a covering letter when applying for a job - most employers won't consider you unless you do.

A covering letter should let the employer know why you are interested in the job and why you think you can do it.

The hints and tips below should point you in the right direction:

- Keep it simple. A covering letter should be short and to the point - no more than six paragraphs.
- Mention the job. If you are replying to an advert, mention what the job is and where you saw it. The company may be advertising for other positions and it may not be clear which job you are applying for.
- Sell yourself. Explain why you are the perfect candidate for the job. Show off your strengths and experience. Refer to your CV - if it goes missing then at least an employer will know that you've sent it.
- Check it for mistakes. A silly spelling mistake in a covering letter is likely to cost you your chance of getting an interview. Also, make sure it is addressed to the right person in the right department.

A covering letter can be just as important as a CV in getting you an interview. It's your first point of contact with your potential employer - so make it count.

Squaring up: Karate champion Nato Ficarra, left, with boxing legend Dave 'Boy' Green, who is backing his scheme to provide martial arts sessions for youngsters in the area. CP

Champion Nato passes on his skills

KARATE champion Nato Ficarra is passing on his skills to youngsters through a series of classes at schools in Wilburton and Witchford.

The 42 year old, who claimed his third European title earlier this year, has teamed up with Chatteris-based boxing legend Dave 'Boy' Green to provide martial arts sessions for youngsters in the area.

The pair met up recently to discuss ways they can use their expertise to help the community, and Ficarra's classes at Harbour School and Witchford Village College are the early results of it. "The aim is to get them to their first belt," said Ficarra.

"That normally takes about two to three months, and after that we'll see where things go from there."

Ficarra has been encouraged by the response so far, with more than 20 youngsters attending his weekly sessions at Harbour. At Witchford Village College, Ficarra is encouraging girls to take up the sport, with 14 so far already attending.

"The youngsters that have come along so far have already improved," added Ficarra.

"The classes are aimed at boosting the youngsters' confidence. We hope that if these are successful more schools will come forward in the future."

CAMBS COLTS LGE, U17 KO CUP, LGE TWO

AGAINST a well-prepared Aztecs side on a small pitch, Town failed to take their chances in the first half until, just before the break, Tyler Broker played in Elliott Drewery, who beat the home keeper.

Aztecs equalised just after the break and then went on to frustrate Soham with some good defending. It took until stoppage time before Town sealed the win. Dan Whitwell was brought down in the box and man of the match Simon Murfitt sent the keeper the wrong way with the spot kick.

PORT turned on the style against the league's in-form side.

They opened the scoring after two minutes through Will Crisp, and Alister Musa soon added a second. Tom Beresford made it three within 15 minutes, before the visitors replied. Port added a fourth through Musa, but Shepford scored on the stroke of half time. Beresford scored Port's fifth and Luke Thompson set up Musa for his hat-trick. Littleport: J Brown, J Murfitt, R Woods, C Bowditch, B Jewitt, L Thompson C Lightfoot, C Mackender, W Crisp, A Musa, T Beresford, J Kennedy.

Rovers took the lead with Jake

The second half opened with Needlingworth's captain equalising with an unstoppable shot.

The game was fairly until, with 10 minutes to go, Ryan Roberts and Charlie Russell set up Josh Robinson to race clear and give Haddenham the lead with a powerful side-foot shot. Rovers' keeper Richard Padmore made a fine save to keep his side ahead.

CAMBS MINI LGE U11 CUP, SECOND ROUND

ELY failed to exploit a strong first-half display, but still scored a good win. Crusaders claimed the breakthrough on 15 minutes through Harrison Jones.

Lewis Hook came on to score within seconds and soon set up Anthony Riches for a close-range goal.

Hook then coolly dispatched James Barrett's through pass before again turning provider for Riches' second before the interval.

Despite a five-goal advantage and dominating both possession and territory, Crusaders' second-half performance was let down by some disappointing decision-making.

Jones did score his second of the match, which was cancelled out by a solitary Hundon goal late on.

HADDENHAM'S six-match unbeaten run came to an end in a thrilling encounter against Saffron Walden. Rovers started the brighter, but the home defence limited them to only long-range efforts.

As Haddenham seemed to be getting a foothold in the game they conceded a soft goal when Will Darlington could only parry a shot and the visitors knocked in the loose ball.

From then on, Rovers dominated with Matt Wright and Josh Akinwumi both striking a post and Josh Lowe forcing the keeper into two excellent saves. With five minutes remaining, it looked certain Rovers would get an equaliser when man of the match Dammy Oyinlade was brought down in the box, but Wright missed from the spot.

WITCHFORD recorded their biggest win of the campaign with their best performance of the season.

They raced into a two-goal lead after four minutes, with Luke Nash putting the finishing touches to both.

Substitute Henry Green scored with his first touch and fellow sub Matthew Allum then added two quick goals to finish the first-half scoring.

Waterbeach came back with a goal, but Elliot Martin made it 3-1.

Josh Booy-Howlett netted the fourth, but Waterbeach scored again.

An own goal gave Waterbeach their third goal, but Jon Collins scored from a long shot to make it 5-3.

Harnwell scored another to complete his hat-trick, and Tom Goodjohn rounded off the scoring.

Injuries hit Ely

ELY'S trip to second-placed Stowmarket in Eastern Counties One on Saturday began positively, but rapidly went downhill as a string of injuries cost them dear and they succumbed 51-18.

Lloyd Palmer, captain Mark Mitzman, Lee Coulson and Dan Coulson were all forced off during the contest, with the Tigers having to play the last 20 minutes with 14 men.

Ely were only 11-6 behind at half time as Ed Fahy and Jamie Russell kicked a penalty each.

But the title challengers ran away with it after the break, although Kev Groom crossed the whitewash and Joel Scott-Paul registered a late try, which was converted by Fahy.

Skipper Mitzman said: "Playing the final

20 minutes a man down allowed the scoreline to flatter Stowmarket.

"This was a really well-contested game, but, obviously, I'm disappointed to have come away on the losing side.

"At the end of the day, we played some great rugby and I'm sure that if the first half hadn't finished when it did, the result might have been different, as we had them rattled and on the back foot.

"Unfortunately, things just didn't go our way, but we face Southwold at home next week and that will be a fixture we are targeting as a must-win game."

■ Newmarket were visitors for Ely under-nines, who were hoping to continue their winning streak.

Three games were played, with the Tigers winning them all and, yet again, not allowing the opposition to score a try.

Ely took the first encounter 3-0 with tries by Kallum Mulhall (2) and Matthew Melloy.

The second match saw Robert Armer claim both scores as Ely won 2-0.

TEENAGE sprinter Jonnie Peacock is relishing the chance to clash blades with Paralympic legend Oscar Pistorius.

The 16-year-old has been invited to run the 100m at the Paralympic World Cup in Manchester in May – and the world record-holding South African is set to be among the opposition.

It is the latest step in a meteoric rise for Peacock, one which he hopes will climax with a spot alongside Pistorius at the Games in London 2012 and Rio 2016.

"It will be awesome, it's going to be quality to run against him – I just love chasing people," said Peacock, who lost a leg below the knee as a result of meningitis when he was five.

"Realistically, I don't ever want to come last, but it's a huge international event, so I wouldn't be surprised if I did. "I'm not going there to beat anyone, that's just stupid, but I'm going there for a personal best and for the experience."

Peacock's best time is 12.84sec, but he said: "It's not quick enough yet. I want to break 12sec pretty soon, and by August I need to get it under 12.2sec, then I should go through to the IPC World Championships in New Zealand in 2011."

That would still leave him some way behind Pistorius, dubbed the Blade Runner, whose best is 10.91sec and who has taken part in able-bodied competition.

But Peacock said: "I want to give him something to worry about one day, not in 2012 but maybe in 2016. I'm hoping to get into London, but 2016 is a much more realistic chance of doing well."

Cambridge Regional College student Peacock, from Chatteris, started sprinting after shining at a talent identification day less than 18 months ago.

"I did a bit of wheelchair tennis and shooting and some sprints and they picked me up and asked if I wanted to join the training programme for six months," he said. Through the programme, he was set up with Cambridge-based coach Hayley Ginn.

She said: "I have every faith he will reach 2012 – it would be fantastic if he could have that opportunity to run, but 2016 is where we're really looking to hit from a sporting perspective.

"He's so committed to training sessions, and critical of what he's doing, and when he performs in competition he's very focused and really goes for it."

"He can gain an awful lot from the experience of running in Manchester and I'm pretty confident he's going to run a personal best."

"At 16, to be invited to compete for your country is amazing."

Sweet revenge as Ely sink Rockets

IT was a very satisfactory outcome when Ely II looked to gain revenge over Rockets, one of the teams to defeat them at the start of the Cambs County League season.

Rockets started the stronger, going 5-0 up before Ely started to settle in the slippery conditions.

By quarter time Ely trailed by just two goals.

It took until half time for Ely to pull into a narrow lead.

As Rockets started to tire,

Ely piled on the pressure and excellent defending once again by Victoria Cutforth, Alison Crombie and Celeste Gordan frustrated Rockets into making mistakes.

This enabled Ely's attacking duo of Sue Everett and Debbie Knott to feed the ball into shooters Sally Shipley and Janice Quarrier.

Racing in the women's junior 14 category, the Ely quad crossed the finishing line in a time of 8min 1sec, a full 23 seconds ahead of their nearest challengers.

"We worked well together as a crew and we're committed to improving our technique and our race fitness still further," said cox Ellen Bridges.

Crew members Libby Milne and Nell Freeman both attend Soham Village College, while Phoebe Bradbury, Laura Sibson and Bridges are pupils at King's School, Ely.

The rowing club had three other crews competing, with the women's junior 15, coxed by Adam Hebbard, completing the course in a time of 8min 19sec, 32 seconds behind the winning crew from Peterborough.

Club captain Jo Cotgrove and team-mate Ella Turton raced in two different divisions.

They contested the women's intermediate 3 coxless quad with Emma Pencheon and Catherine Murray and then again with Andrew Turton and Mark Goddard in a men's intermediate quad sculls category.

Both crews acquitted themselves well against strong opposition, posting times of 7.54 and 7.26 respectively.

Ely rowers now look forward to the second round of the Cambridge Winter League races at the weekend.

Off-day: Soham keeper Ian Pledger, who was shown a red card.

Greens go down after Pledger red

THE dismissal of Soham keeper Ian Pledger proved to be the turning point of a competitive game that ultimately went the way of the visitors at Julius Martin Lane on Saturday.

After falling behind in the 30th minute, Ian Benjamin's men hauled themselves back in the game when Dubi Ogbonna scored from the penalty spot after a handball in the Chesham area.

But a clash between Pledger and Chesham forward Darrell Cox in the 40th minute resulted in a red card for both, the striker for a late challenge and

Soham Town Rangers 1 Chesham United 4
ZAMARETTO LEAGUE, DIVISION ONE MIDLANDS

Pledger for retaliating. The red cards upset the Greens' balance more than it did Chesham's, and with Scott Johnson leaving his marking job on Steve Wales to take Pledger's place in goal, the hosts were vulnerable in the second half.

It was no surprise when Wales fired Chesham in front six minutes after the interval and after Sam Ledger added United's third, Wales bagged a second to complete the victory.

"It was a frustrating game," said Benjamin.

"It was an honest decision by the referee to send Ian off, but I think it was the wrong one.

"If I'd had stud marks down my chest and under my chin I would have been upset and the referee should have realised that."

He continued: "It was never a 4-1 game. I couldn't fault the players. Deakan Napier had probably his best game for us and Martin Bromwich was outstanding."

■ The Greens are in league action on Saturday when they are due to travel to Warwickshire to take on a Bedworth side who are currently just below them in the league table. Kick-off is at 3pm.

Ridgeons League Premier Division side Wisbech Town will be their opponents in the semi-final at the Fenmen's ground at the Nest, Outwell (7.45pm).

The victors will face the winners of Tuesday's other semi-final between Cambridge City and Mildenhall Town.

Lightning is bemused by officials' decisions

Ely City 0

PREMIER DIVISION

DENNIS Lightning felt two controversial decisions denied his team a hard-earned point against second-placed Needham Market as his side went down to a 2-0 defeat.

The City boss felt both goals, scored in the first half, should have been disallowed for offside.

"I wouldn't say we deserved to win the game but we battled well enough to come away with a point," he said.

"For the first goal a player has run from deep and everyone except the linesman and referee thought it was offside.

"The second time the linesman had his flag up. After the goal was scored the referee went over and had a chat with him and for some reason decided the goal should stand.

"Apart from their two offside goals it was an even game."

Manager Lightning was delighted to take maximum points from a disappointing encounter.

He said: "It wasn't an inspiring game, but we lost four players to illness before kick-off and it was a pleasing result."

Unhappy: Ely City manager Dennis Lightning, who thought both Needham Market goals had more than a hint of offside about them.

■ The Robins' recent 5-0 victory over Harwich & Parkeston was chalked off when the strugglers from the Essex coast withdrew from the league last week.

It means that their record has been expunged and the Robins lose both the three points and goals scored.

Lightning said: "I thought it might happen as the place was very downbeat when we were there. It's a shame, because I think the players could have seen the season out.

"It's always a shame when this happens because it messes up the league.

"Unfortunately, it's a sign of the times, from the Premier League down to our level."

■ The Robins are back in league action on Saturday when they are scheduled to entertain Felixstowe & Walton at the Unwin Ground, kick-off 3pm.
